people live in lagging areas of developing nations remote from globalization's many benefits And poverty and high mortality persist among the world's bottom billion trapped without access to global markets even as others grow more prosperous and live ever longer lives Concern for these three intersecting billions often comes with the prescription that growth must be spatially balanced This report has a different message economic growth will be unbalanced To try to spread it out is to discourage it to fight prosperity not poverty But development can still be inclusive even for people who start their lives distant from dense economic activity For growth to be rapid and shared governments must promote economic integration the pivotal concept as this report argues in the policy debates on urbanization territorial development and regional integration Instead all three debates overemphasize place based interventions Reshaping Economic Geography reframes these debates to include all the instruments of integration spatially blind institutions spatially connective infrastructure and spatially targeted interventions By calibrating the blend of these instruments today's developers can reshape their economic geography If they do this well their growth will still be unbalanced but their development will be inclusive Book cover
