McNitt-Gray, 2016-11-10 For the manual wheelchair MWC user loss of lower extremity function often places the burden for mobility and activities of daily living on the upper extremities This e book on Wheeled Mobility Biomechanics contains current research that provides insights into the mechanical demands and performance techniques during tasks associated with MWC Our intent was to contribute to advancing the knowledge regarding the variables that promote or hinder an individual's capacity to handle the daily manual wheeled mobility demands and gain greater insights into upper extremity loading consequences predictors of pain onset and injury and ultimately identify strategies for preserving health and functional mobility for the MWC user ICoRD'13 Amaresh Chakrabarti, Raghu V. Prakash, 2013-01-12 This book showcases over 100 cutting edge research papers from the 4th International Conference on Research into Design ICoRD 13 the largest in India in this area written by eminent researchers from over 20 countries on the design process methods and tools for supporting global product development GPD The special features of the book are the variety of insights into the GPD process and the host of methods and tools at the cutting edge of all major areas of design research for its support The main benefit of this book for researchers in engineering design and GPD are access to the latest quality research in this area for practitioners and educators it is exposure to an empirically validated suite of methods and tools that can be taught and practiced Wearable Sensor Technology for Monitoring

Training Load and Health in the Athletic Population Billy Sperlich,Hans-Christer Holmberg,Kamiar Aminian,2020-02-13

Several internal and external factors have been identified to estimate and control the psycho biological stress of training in order to optimize training responses and to avoid fatigue overtraining and other undesirable health effects of an athlete An increasing number of lightweight sensor based wearable technologies wearables have entered the sports technology market Non invasive sensor based wearable technologies could transmit physical physiological and biological data to computing platform and may provide through human machine interaction smart watch smartphone tablet bio feedback of various parameters for training load management and health However in theory several wearable technologies may assist to control training load but the assessment of accuracy reliability validity usability and practical relevance of new upcoming technologies for the management of training load is paramount for optimal adaptation and health

Neuro-motor control and feed-forward models of locomotion in humans Marco Iosa,Nadia Dominici,Federica Tamburella,Leonardo Gizzi,2015-07-29 Locomotion involves many different muscles and the need of controlling several degrees of freedom Despite the Central Nervous System can finely control the contraction of individual muscles emerging evidences indicate that strategies for the reduction of the complexity of movement and for compensating the sensorimotor delays may be adopted Experimental evidences in animal and lately human model led to the concept of a central pattern generator CPG which suggests that circuitry within the distal part of CNS i e spinal cord can generate the basic locomotor patterns even in the absence of sensory information Different studies pointed out the role of CPG in the control of locomotion as well as others investigated the neuroplasticity of CPG allowing for gait recovery after spinal cord lesion Literature was also focused on muscle synergies i e the combination of locomotor functional modules implemented in neuronal networks of the spinal cord generating specific motor output by imposing a specific timing structure and appropriate weightings to muscle activations Despite the great interest that this approach generated in the last years in the Scientific Community large areas of investigations remain available for further improvement e g the influence of afferent feedback and environmental constrains for both experimental and simulated models However also supraspinal structures are involved during locomotion and it has been shown that they are responsible for initiating and modifying the features of this basic rhythm for stabilising the upright walking and for coordinating movements in a dynamic changing environment Furthermore specific damages into spinal and supraspinal structures result in specific alterations of human locomotion as evident in subjects with brain injuries such as stroke brain trauma or people with cerebral palsy in people with death of dopaminergic neurons in the substantia nigra due to Parkinson s disease or in subjects with cerebellar dysfunctions such as patients with ataxia The role of cerebellum during locomotion has been shown to be related to coordination and adaptation of movements Cerebellum is the structure of CNS where are conceivably located the internal models that are neural representations miming meaningful aspects of our body such as input output characteristics of sensorimotor system Internal model control has been shown to be at the basis of motor strategies for compensating delays or lacks in sensorimotor feedbacks and some aspects of locomotion need predictive internal control especially for improving gait dynamic stability for avoiding obstacles or when sensory feedback is altered or lacking Furthermore despite internal model concepts are widespread in neuroscience and neurocognitive science neurorehabilitation paid far too little attention to the potential role of internal model control on gait recovery Many important scientists have contributed to this Research Topic with original studies computational studies and review articles focused on neural circuits and internal models involved in the control of human locomotion aiming at understanding the role played in control of locomotion of different neural circuits located at brain cerebellum and spinal cord levels Technology 2001 ,1991 Exercise and Biomechanical Intervention in the Prevention, Management and Rehabilitation of Neuro-musculoskeletal Disorders, volume II Qichang Mei,Liming Shu,Justin Fernandez,2024-11-19 Neuromusculoskeletal biomechanics has been a popular topic in understanding the disorders of the human motor system during daily clinical and sport specific activities Recent studies have been conducted to examine the neuromusculoskeletal control e g postural control gait stability and falling the mechanisms of sports injuries e g Anterior Cruciate Ligament Achilles Tendon hamstring strain and bone fracture and clinical diseases e g joint Osteoarthritis and cerebral palsy etc and the task based functional assessment However previous biomechanical approaches such as the traditional lab based experiments musculoskeletal MSK modeling and Finite Element FE simulation are employed separately to investigate the above biomechanical problems In recent decades several excellent and open source platforms or software have been developed based on the rapid development of technology and advances in interdisciplinary fusion The cross platform compatibility challenges were overcome specifically for subject specific to population based studies experimental scenarios lab motion capture to intelligent wearables and markerless sensing and rigid to continuum tissue loading formation adaptability and damage All these techniques when combined may offer promising plausibility to understand motor disorders or diseases As a result this Research Topic will serve as a compendium of techniques mentioned above but not limited to for understanding neuromusculoskeletal disorders with a special interest in fusion with Digital Technologies This Research Topic aims to gather Original Research articles and Review articles that integrate current state of the art neuromusculoskeletal including musculoskeletal neuromuscular or neuroskeletal modeling approaches and Digital Technologies Digital Twin DT to investigate the complex biomechanical mechanisms for the prevention diagnosis treatment and rehabilitation of disorders in the human motor system Moreover this Research Topic would like to publish studies on experiment driven and muscle driven computational MSK and FE modeling of neuro muscular tendon bone and joint ligament and cartilage tissues for the injury
