Discussion Questions

Background

1. A quote often attributed to Mark Twain states,

"What gets us into trouble is not what we don't know. It's what we know for sure that just ain't so."

How does this relate to Pangaea and the Theory of Plate Tectonics?

The idea that the continents fit together was rejected by many for along time, as the notion of entire land masses moving was simply too unbelievable. This, of course, turned out to be true.

2. The sun emits three main wavelengths of energy that reach the earth. Which is responsible for global warming?

- a. Infrared
- b. Ultraviolet
- c. Visible

3. A clip from the Futurama episode Crimes of the Hot is shown. At the end of the clip, global warming is "solved" by dropping larger and larger ice cubes into the ocean.

- a. How is this a metaphor for how global warming has been handled in the real world?
The problem isn't really being dealt with or given any urgency. We may be forced to come up with a last-minute solution.

- b. Assume that humanity had the technology to mine and transport large amounts of ice from other planets to the Earth. Why would this solution not actually work?

Among other problems, as the ice in the ocean melted, it would cause sea levels to rise, creating a massive amount of flooding in coastal areas.

Responsible Business Oliver Laasch, Roger Conaway, 2017-09-08. As sustainable development becomes an increasingly important strategic issue for all organizations, there is a growing need for management and executive education to adapt to this new reality. This textbook provides a theoretically sound and highly relevant introduction to the topic of socially and environmentally responsible business. The authors take a competence-based approach to responsible management education. The book aims to go beyond the traditional domains of teaching and towards the facilitation of learning across key competences. Each chapter in this book has a section dedicated to exercises that cover five core competences: know, think, do, relate, be, to enable self-directed transformative learning. Drawing from the classic background theories such as corporate sustainability, business ethics, and corporate social responsibility, these concepts are applied to the most up-to-date practices. The book covers an international perspective, featuring cases from countries all around the world. It has a strong theoretical basis and fully integrates the topics of sustainability, responsibility, and ethics. The book includes a wide variety of tools for change at individual, company, and systemic levels. Published with the Principles for Responsible Management Education (PRME), a United Nations Global Compact supported initiative, this is both an essential resource for business students at all levels and a self-study handbook for executives.

The Environmental Documentary John A. Duvall, 2017-05-18. The Environmental Documentary provides the first extensive coverage of the most important environmental films of the decade, including their approach to their topics and their impacts on public opinion and political debate. While documentaries with themes of environmental activism date back at least to Pare Lorenz's films of the 1930s, no previous decade has produced the number and quality of films that engage environmental issues from an activist viewpoint. The convergence of high-profile issues like climate change, fossil fuel depletion, animal abuse, and corporate malfeasance, combined with the miniaturization of high-quality recording equipment and the expansion of documentary programming to produce an unprecedented number of important and influential documentary productions. The text examines the processes of production and distribution that have produced this explosion in documentaries The films range from a high profile Hollywood production with theatrical distribution like An Inconvenient Truth to shorter independently produced films like The End of Suburbia that have reached a small audience of activists through video distribution interviews with many of the filmmakers and word of mouth Plunkett's Entertainment & Media Industry Almanac Jack W.
