in those Times, and what Light Records may afford us; such as at present I am able to collect, give me leave to discourse a little upon.

That a Temple of Apollo was here in Thorney island (the Place exactly so called, where the Church now stands) and ruined by an Earthquake in the Reign of the Emperor Antonine Pius,¹ I cannot readily agree. The Romans did not use, even in their Colonies, to build so lightly; the Ruins of antient Times show their Works to this Day; the best Fragments of Columns, or Capital, would demonstrate their Hardy-work. nor would the Dirt be at that Place; but I imagine the Monks finding the Lowdown pertaining to a Temple of Diana, where now St. Paul's stands;² Hoops of Stags, Tunks of Boars, &c. having been dug up there in former times, and it is said also, in later Years would not be behind Hand in Antiquity; but I must avow, that having changed all the Foundations of Old Paul's, and upon that Occasion maneraged all the Ground thereabout, and being very desirous to find some Footsteps of such a Temple, I could not discover any, and therefore can give no more Credit to Diana than to Apollo.

To pass over the fabulous Account, that King Lud³ first founded a little Church here, A.D. 170, out of the Ruins of the Temple of Apollo, destroyed by an Earthquake a little before; but it is revealed with better Authority,⁴ that Selen, King of the East-Saxons,⁵ built a Monastery and Church here in 603, which being destroyed by the Danes, was about 350 Years after repaired by the great King Edgar.⁶ This, it is probable, was a strong good Building, from the Mode of that Age, not much altered from the Roman. We have some Examples of this antient Saxon Manner,⁷ which was built with Piers or round Pillars, much stronger than Towers, round headed Arches, and Windows; such was Winchester Cathedral of old,⁸ and such at this Day the Royal Chapel in the Monastery of

Wren's Tracts On Architecture And Other Writings:

Wren's 'Tracts' on Architecture and Other Writings Lydia M. Soo, 2007-10-02 Wren's Tracts on Architecture and Other Writings is the first scholarly examination of the theoretical work of one of the most important architects of early modern Europe. From his study of ancient buildings he posited a new version of the origins and development of the Classical style, thereby becoming one of the first to challenge theoretical principles of architecture that had been upheld since the Renaissance. Rejecting the idea of beauty as absolute and innate, Wren formulated an empirical definition based on visual perception and custom. Architects and Intellectual Culture in Post-Restoration England Matthew

Walker, 2017-10-20 Architects, Builders and Intellectual Culture in Restoration England charts the moment when well-educated, well-resourced English intellectuals first became interested in classical architecture in substantial numbers. This occurred after the Restoration of the Monarchy in 1660 and involved people such as John Evelyn, Robert Hooke, Sir Christopher Wren, and Roger North. Matthew Walker explores how these figures treated architecture as a subject of intellectual enquiry, either as writers or as designers of buildings, or as both. In four substantial chapters, it looks at how the architect was defined as a major intellectual figure, how architects acquired material that allowed them to define themselves as intellectually competent architects, how intellectual writers in the period handled knowledge of ancient architecture in their writing, and how the design process in architecture was conceived of in theoretical writing at the time. In all, Walker shows that the key to understanding English architectural culture at the time is to understand how architecture was handled as knowledge and how architects were conceived of as collectors and producers of such knowledge. He also makes the claim that architecture was treated as an extremely serious and important area of intellectual enquiry, the result of which was that by the turn of the eighteenth century, architects and architectural writers could count themselves amongst England's intellectual and cultural elite. Architecture and Urbanism in the British Empire G. A. Bremner, 2016-10-13

Throughout today's postcolonial world, buildings, monuments, parks, streets, avenues, entire cities even remain as witness to Britain's once impressive if troubled imperial past. These structures are a conspicuous and near inescapable reminder of that past, and therefore the built heritage of Britain's former colonial empire is a fundamental part of how we negotiate our postcolonial identities, often lying at the heart of social tension and debate over how that identity is best represented. This volume provides an overview of the architectural and urban transformations that took place across the British Empire between the seventeenth and mid-twentieth centuries. Although much research has been carried out on architecture and urban planning in Britain's empire, in recent decades no single comprehensive reference source exists. The essays compiled here remedy this deficiency. With its extensive chronological and regional coverage by leading scholars in the field, this volume will quickly become a seminal text for those who study, teach, and research the relationship between empire and the built environment in the British context. It provides an up-to-date account of past and current historiographical approaches.

toward the study of British imperial and colonial architecture and urbanism and will prove equally useful to those who study architecture and urbanism in other European imperial and transnational contexts The volume is divided in two main sections The first section deals with overarching thematic issues including building typologies major genres and periods of activity networks of expertise and the transmission of ideas the intersection between planning and politics as well as the architectural impact of empire on Britain itself The second section builds on the first by discussing these themes in relation to specific geographical regions teasing out the variations and continuities observable in context both practical and theoretical

Articulating British Classicism Elizabeth McKellar, 2017-07-05 Whereas the past decades have seen a profound reconsideration of eighteenth century visual culture the architecture of that century has undergone little evaluation Its study unlike that of the early modern period or the twentieth century has continued to use essentially the same methods and ideas over the last fifty years Articulating British Classicism reconsiders the traditional historiography of British eighteenth century architecture as it was shaped after World War II and brings together for the first time a variety of new perspectives on British classicism in the period Drawing on current thinking about the eighteenth century from a range of disciplines the book examines such topics as social and gender identities colonialization and commercialization notions of the rural urban and suburban as well as issues of theory and historiography Canonical constructions of Georgian architecture are explored including current evaluations of the continental intellectual background the relationship with mid seventeenth century Stuart court classicism and the development of the subject in the twentieth century

The Antiquary Kelsey Jackson Williams, 2016 John Aubrey 1626 1697 antiquary natural philosopher and virtuoso is best remembered today for his Brief Lives biographies of his contemporaries filled with luminous detail which have been mined for anecdotes by generations of scholars However Aubrey was much more than merely the hand behind an invaluable source of biographical material he was also the author of thousands of pages of manuscript notebooks covering everything from the origins of Stonehenge to the evolution of folklore Kelsey Jackson Williams explores these manuscripts in full for the first time and in doing so illuminates the intricacies of Aubrey s investigations into Britain s past The Antiquary is both a major new study of an important early modern writer and a significant intervention in the developing historiography of antiquarianism. It discusses the key aspects of Aubrey's work in a series of linked chapters on archaeology, architecture, biography, folklore, and philology, concluding with a revisionist interpretation of Aubrey's antiquarian writings. While covering a wide variety of scholarly territory, it remains rooted in the common thread of Aubrey's own intellectual development and the continual interaction between his texts as he studied, discovered, revised, and rewrote them across four decades. Its conclusions not only substantially reshape our understanding of Aubrey and his works but also provide new understandings of the methodologies, ambitions, and achievements of antiquarianism across early modern Europe.

Brill's Companion to the Reception of Vitruvius, 2024-03-18. As a master of his discipline, the ancient Roman architect Vitruvius has been read widely for centuries. This collection of essays by an international team of experts investigates his influence and reception in ideas, artistic forms, and building practices from antiquity to modern day. The stories of influence told in these pages suggest that it is the unbridgeable gulf between the Vitruvian text and surviving monuments that makes reading the Ten Books so endlessly compelling. The contributors to this volume offer their own original readings, which are organized into the five sections: transmission, translation, reception, practice, and Vitruvian topics.

The Quest for an Appropriate Past in Literature, Art and Architecture, 2018-10-16. This volume explores the various strategies by which appropriate pasts were construed in scholarship, literature, art, and architecture in order to create national, regional, or local identities in late medieval and early modern Europe. Because authority was based on lineage, political and territorial claims were underpinned by historical arguments, either true or otherwise. Literature, scholarship, art, and architecture were pivotal media that were used to give evidence of the impressive old lineage of states, regions, or families. These claims were related not only to classical antiquity but also to other periods that were regarded as antiquities, such as the Middle Ages, especially the chivalric age. The authors of this volume analyse these intriguing early modern constructions of antiquity and investigate the ways in which they were applied in political, intellectual, and artistic contexts in the period of 1400-1700. Contributors include Barbara Arciszewska, Bianca De Divitiis, Karl Enenkel, Hubertus G. Ntner, Thomas Haye, Harald Hendrix, Stephan Hoppe, Marc Laureys, Fr d rique Lemerle, Coen Maas, Anne Fran oise Morel, Kristoffer Neville, Konrad Ottenheim, Yves Pauwels, Christian Peters, Christoph Pieper, David Rijser, Bernd Roling, Nuno Senos, Paul Smith, Pieter Vlaardingnerbroek, and Matthew Walker.

"The Great Ocean of Knowledge" Ann Talbot, 2010-01-01

This book explores the way in which working within the investigative tradition associated with the Royal Society the philosopher John Locke 1632 1704 used travellers reports to develop a form of comparative social anthropology which was to inform his major philosophical works British Architectural Theory 1540-1750 Caroline van Eck,2018-02-05 This title was published in 2003 Although it is often assumed that British writing on architectural theory really started in the 18th century there is in fact a large corpus of writing on architecture pre dating the introduction of Palladianism by Lord Burlington Some of it such as the English editions of Serlio and Palladio belongs to the Vitruvian tradition But many texts elude such easy classification such as the prolonged but hardly studied discussions on church architecture which are both in form and content very different from the way that theme was handled in Italian Renaissance treatises This collection of English writing on architecture from 1540 to 1750 offers a large selection of fragments some of them never published before They discuss the nature of architecture the practicalities of building the sense of the past religious architecture and classicism Of Thine Own Have We Given Thee Shawn O. Strout,2023-04-13 Every Sunday around the world Christians offer money and in kind gifts to the church traditionally known as alms For communities that celebrate the Eucharist regularly bread and wine traditionally known as oblations often accompany these gifts What does it mean theologically for Christians to offer gifts to God who first offered the greatest gift of Jesus Christ This question regarding the role of alms and oblations in the liturgy was among the most controversial questions of the English Reformations in the sixteenth century While the eucharistic prayer proper has often been the site of this theological controversy the offertory rite has also received great attention The 1552 English Book of Common Prayer excised all references to oblation in the offertory rite but oblationary language and actions such as the offertory procession returned in full force by the twentieth century The movement from the near elimination of oblation in the offertory rite to its widespread usage in the churches of the Anglican Communion is a remarkable liturgical and theological development Using liturgical theology s tools of historical textual and contextual analyses this book explores how this development occurred and why it is important for the church today Dealing with the Visual Caroline van Eck,Edward Winters,2017-11-30 One of the issues underlying current debates between practitioners of art history visual culture and aesthetics is whether the visual is a unique irreducible category or whether it can be assimilated with the textual or verbal without any significant loss Can paintings buildings or installations be read in the way texts are read or deciphered or do works of visual art ask for their own kind of appreciation This is not only a question of choosing the right method in dealing with visual works of art but also an issue that touches on the roots of the disciplines involved can a case be made for the visual as an irreducible category of art and if so how is it best studied and appreciated In this anthology this question is approached from the angles of three disciplines aesthetics visual culture and art history Unlike many existing overviews of visual culture studies it includes both painting and architecture and investigates historical ways of defining and appreciating the visual in their own contemporary terms Dealing with the Visual will be of great use to advanced students because it offers an overview of current debates and to graduate students and professionals in the field because the essays offer in depth investigations of the methodological issues involved and various historical ways of defining visuality The topics included range from early modern ways of viewing pictures and sixteenth century views of Palladio s villas in their landscape settings to contemporary debate about whether there is life yet in painting
