Transformation And Sustainability In Agriculture Connecting Practice With Social Theory:

Transformation and Sustainability in Agriculture Sietze Vellema, 2011-09-06 Public pressure and societal changes induce interventions and policies which aim to transform agriculture and food provision This book shows that for upscaling novel practices and organizational models it is important to include meso level regime aspects in analysis and practice The argument presented is that our understanding of the human and social dimensions of transformation processes can be enriched by anchoring practice and policy in social theory A focus on transitions offers a clear view on the direction and velocity of change This publication aims to complement this by highlighting theoretical insights in the social or institutional mechanisms enabling or hindering change Essays on a selection of theorists varying from idealist or materialist accounts to actor or system approaches examine what the presented explanatory framework on social change offers in terms of guidance for intervention and action The value of these theoretical insights is further explored in a selection of case studies in agriculture and food rural reconstruction in horticulture and livestock seed supply systems and pest control Each case study systematically applies six theoretical frameworks with the purpose of investigating what novel insights arise from looking at the change process from a particular perspective Through this exercise the often implicit assumptions of hands on change processes surface This book is of interest to practitioners engaged in changing current practices in agriculture and food provision policy makers interested in grasping why transitions are challenging applied researchers who like to move beyond individual case studies and social and natural scientists involved in integrative studies of complex change processes

Agricultural Adaptation to Climate Change Christopher R. Bryant, Mamadou A. Sarr, Kénel Délusca, 2016-08-26 This book deals with one of the major challenges facing human society and its governments climate change and variability The principal objective of the book is to explore how agricultural production through the actions primarily of farmers including peasant farmers adapt to these changing circumstances what the limitations of adaptation are how the process of adaptation varies between different territories e g developed countries versus developing countries and what are or can be the most effective roles for actors other than the farmers including different levels of government and non governmental organizations NGOs such as professional associations of farmers and community organizations The principal argument is threefold 1 while there are significant differences between territories and countries in terms of the capacity of farmers and the other actors to engage in capacity building to be able to adapt effectively to climate change and variability 2 the critical roles are those played out by the farmers themselves but that 3 other actors can play an important role in accompanying farmers in their adaptation process providing relevant and strategic information counseling them and facilitating networking and meetings when appropriate This effectively means that without engaging in the local adaptation processes governments can really only play effective roles by working with other actors at the local and regional levels When it occurs it can be very effective but when it does not farmers are left to their own devices and even then many are able to use their own creativity and local knowledge to survive and continue to develop Essentially therefore the secondary argument that is followed throughout the book is that adaptation is essentially a social process that requires an understanding of social processes and dynamics in each farming community and territory It involves an understanding for instance of information diffusion processes in the different farming communities and territories which provides a set of tools to promote and facilitate the adoption process in the context of adaptation to climate change and variability Cultivating the Sustainable Agriculturalist Navina Khanna,2007

Sterling,2001 How will we move towards sustainability By learning through crisis or by design In this Briefing Stephen Sterling points out that Progress towards a more sustainable future critically depends on learning yet most education and learning take no account of sustainability The reorientation of education towards sustainable development since the Agenda 21 agreement of 1992 has been very slow Education is largely behind other fields in developing new thinking and practice in response to the challenge of sustainability Cities Farming for the Future René van
