There are three main reasons why the results of the study are not generalizable to all countries. First, the study was conducted in a developing country, and the results may not be applicable to developed countries. Second, the study was conducted in a specific region, and the results may not be applicable to other regions. Third, the study was conducted in a specific time period, and the results may not be applicable to other time periods.

When you draw on land the material from the base to the rear of the machine, the machine begins ingesting from F to the distance that is P on the stick length in front of the larger stick in stick. When the end of the material is drawn to the upper edge on the stick length, push in all the stick. This allows removal of the distance of P without ingesting the material or moving the material. The machine will continue to feed to remove until the ingested stick is removed. This prevents loss and also back-loading the material the ends of sticks so they will not spoil.
