demonstrated an unexpected shortage of information suitable for meta analyses as well as a considerable influence of methodology of primary studies on the outcome of the research syntheses To overcome the identified problems we designed a comparative study the results of which are reported in this book

The Soils of the Philippines Rodelio B. Carating, Raymundo G. Galanta, Clarita D. Bacatio, 2014-04-23 The first soil survey in the Philippines was done by Mr Clarence Dorsey an American soil scientist in the province of Batangas in 1903 The Soils of the Philippines however is the first comprehensive summary of more than a century of soil survey work in this country It integrates the soil concepts of the reconnaissance soil survey results which commenced as early as 1934 and continued until the mid 1960s with the semi detailed soil surveys that continue to this day The result is the first ever genetic key for classifying Philippine soils at soil series level thus making it possible for any newcomers to the soil survey field to confidently produce their own soil map at a more detailed map scale to suit the project requirements This book brings together discussions on soils and soil mapping units and up to date international techniques and technologies It makes soils relevant to current political realities and national issues As soil survey moves from a reductionist agricultural development planning tool to a more holistic and integrated approach to enable us to understand our dynamic and complex environment The Soils of the Philippines will be the only source of authoritative and updated data on soil resources for macro level resource management planning for decades to come With a vanishing breed of experienced soil surveyors not only in the Philippines but also worldwide it may remain the only book on Philippine soils for the next hundred years or more Since soils follow a geological and not a human time frame the contents of this volume will stay relevant for soil surveyors even in a fast changing world As the country leaps from an agricultural economy towards modernization and a more diversified economic base some of the soil series in the Philippines for example the Guadalupe series underlying the skyscrapers of Makati City are becoming extinct as a result of urban development Therefore this book serves as the repository for the soils that we possess the soils that have been lost through decades of urbanization while at the same time it creates a soil classification system for the soils we are yet to discover

Flora's Empire Eugenia W. Herbert, 2012-01-31 Like their penchant for clubs cricket and hunting the planting of English gardens by the British in India reflected an understandable need on the part of expatriates to replicate home as much as possible in an alien environment In Flora's Empire Eugenia W Herbert argues that more than simple nostalgia or homesickness lay at the root of this garden imperialism however Drawing on a wealth of period illustrations and personal accounts many of them little known she traces the significance of gardens in the long history of British relations with the subcontinent To British eyes she demonstrates India was an untamed land that needed the visible stamp of civilization that gardens in their many guises could convey Colonial gardens changed over time from the garden houses of eighteenth century nabobs modeled on English country estates to the herbaceous borders gravel walks and well trimmed lawns of Victorian civil servants As the British extended their rule they found that hill stations like Simla offered an ideal retreat from the unbearable heat of the plains and a place to coax English flowers into bloom Furthermore India was part of the global network of botanical exploration and collecting that gathered up the world's plants for transport to great imperial centers such as Kew And it is through colonial gardens that one may track the evolution of imperial ideas of governance Every Government House and Residency was carefully landscaped to reflect current ideals of an ordered society At Independence in 1947 the British left behind a lasting legacy in their gardens one still reflected in the design of parks and information technology campuses and in the horticultural practices of home gardeners who continue to send away to England for seeds
