Water Resources Research In Northwest China:

Water Resources Research in Northwest China Yaning Chen, 2014-03-23 This book examines the possible impacts of climate change on hydrology and water resources in the vast arid region of Northwest China which is one of the world's largest arid places. The first chapter offers an introductory discussion of the physical geography and socioeconomic conditions in the region. Chapters 2 through 7 discuss the climate system and hydrologic system changes in the region and assess some implications of these changes in relation to potential evapotranspiration, the hydrological cycle, and spatiotemporal variations of the snow cover and glaciers as measured via remote sensing geographic information systems and statistical analysis. Chapters 8 and 9 focus on model description and experimental design for interpreting the hydroclimatic process, emphasizing the integration of water, climate, and land ecosystems through field observations and computer-based simulations. Chapter 10 examines some extreme hydrological events and presents a study using the historical trend method to investigate the spatial and temporal variability of changing temperature and precipitation extremes in the hyper-arid region of Northwest China. A concluding chapter discusses possible strategies for sustainable watershed management. The contributors are acknowledged experts who bring broad relevant experience on water resources research in China's cold and arid regions. The lessons of this volume will prove useful for understanding arid areas elsewhere in the world. China's

International Transboundary Rivers Lei Xie, Jia Shaofeng, 2017-12-06 China has forty major transboundary watercourses with neighbouring countries and has frequently been accused of harming its downstream neighbours through its domestic water management policies such as the construction of dams for hydropower. This book provides an understanding of water security in Asia by investigating how shared water resources affect China's relationships with neighbouring countries in South East, Southeast, and Central Asia. Since China is an upstream state on most of its shared transboundary rivers, the country's international water policy is at the core of Asia's water security. These water disputes have had strong implications for China's interstate relations and also influenced its international water policy alongside domestic concerns over water resource management. This book investigates China's policy responses to domestic water crises and examines China's international water policy as well as its strategy in dealing with international cooperation. The authors describe the key elements of water diplomacy in Asia which demonstrate varying degrees of effectiveness of environmental agreements. It shows how China has established various institutional arrangements with neighbouring countries primarily in the form of bilateral agreements over hydrological data exchange. Detailed case studies are included of the Mekong, Brahmaputra, Ili, and Amur rivers. Remote Sensing of Water Resources, Disasters, and Urban Studies Ph.D., Prasad S. Thenkabail, 2015-10-02

This book is the most comprehensive documentation of the scientific and methodological advances that have taken place in understanding remote sensing data methods and applications over last 50 years. In a very practical way, it demonstrates the experience, utility methods, and models used in studying a wide array of water applications. There are more than 100 leading

Jin,2025-03-07 During recent decades the global climate and environment have experienced unprecedented changes Much evidence indicates that the global surface temperature is increasing rapidly especially in the Arctic and extreme climate and environmental events are frequently occurring Climate and environmental changes not only have a great impact on society and the economy but also seriously exert far reaching impacts on both human lives and health Therefore revealing the mechanisms behind the climate and environmental changes is critical to advancing our understanding and predicting of the global climate and environmental changes and their impacts Climate change can cause environmental change and environmental change may in turn affect climate change For example the faster Arctic warming can change the mid latitude large scale atmospheric circulation and further modulate the regional air quality through transport and diffusion Conversely the air pollution associated with industrial activities may also affect the regional and global climate through the complicated aerosol climate interaction The limited understanding of these feedback and interactions adds uncertainty to predicting the future evolution of the climate and environment      Water Resources Management in the People's Republic of China Xuetao
