Confession and Complicity in Narrative Dennis A. Foster, 1987-05-29 What is the precise relationship between the writer of a text and the reader Contributions to reader response theory have suggested that the reader is relatively passive In this 1987 text Professor Foster argues that the relationship is more complex than that readers enter into complicity with writers and create the illusion of the writer's mastery over meaning in order to imagine themselves as masters and become writers in their own place. This dynamic model of the reading process is revealed most tellingly in confessional narratives and so Professor Foster explores the complex patterns of the reader-writer symbiosis in texts by Augustine, Kierkegaard, Henry James, Hawthorne, Faulkner, and Beckett. What emerges is a fresh theory of reading literature: the engagement between writer and reader as a struggle for power in which the reader is actively complicit and self-conscious in his or her interpretations.

Wild Belief Nick Ripatrazone, 2021-05-18 Midway upon the journey of our life, I found myself within a forest dark. Dante's Inferno begins with imagery of the wilderness marked by darkness, fear, and the unknown. In folktales, legends, and children's stories, the wilderness is a place of conflict and exile. Yet there is another spiritual tradition that embraces the complexities of the wilderness as a place of rejuvenation and wonder, a place where Thomas Merton said man purges himself of sediments of society and becomes a new creature. A book for those of us who revel in the beauty and mystery of the natural world, Wild Belief brings together poets and prophets, saints and storytellers from across the ages who share a common search for the spirit. Their explorations of forests, wetlands, and deserts expose the wilderness as both a fearful and a sacred space, a tension that aptly captures the unknown and surprising elements of belief. As we join them on their search for the divine, our eyes open to the possibilities of transformation to our most fundamental stories, and to a fertile spirituality we can only find in the wild.

factors at play in the relationships among U S obscenity laws and literary modernism and naturalism in the early twentieth century Putting obscenity case law s crisis of legitimation and modernism s crisis of representation into dialogue Erik Bachman shows how obscenity trials and other attempts to suppress allegedly vulgar writing in the United States affected a wide ranging debate about the power of the printed word to incite emotion and shape behavior Far from seeking simply to transgress cultural norms or sexual boundaries Bachman argues proscribed authors such as Wyndham Lewis Erskine Caldwell Lillian Smith and James T Farrell refigured the capacity of writing to evoke the obscene so that readers might become aware of the social processes by which they were being turned into mass consumers voyeurs and racialized subjects Through such efforts these writers participated in debates about the libidinal efficacy of language with a range of contemporaries from behavioral psychologists and advertising executives to book cover illustrators magazine publishers civil rights activists and judges Focusing on case law and the social circumstances informing it Literary Obscenities provides an alternative conceptual framework for understanding obscenity s subjugation of human bodies desires and identities to abstract social forces It will appeal especially to scholars of American literature American studies and U S legal history
