Char,Keith O. Geddes,Gaston H.

Gonnet,Benton L. Leong,Michael B. Monagan,Stephen M. Watt,2012-12-06 The design and implementation of the Maple system is an on going project of the Symbolic Com putation Group at the University of Waterloo in Ontario Canada This manual corresponds with version V roman numeral five of the Maple system The on line help subsystem can be invoked from within a Maple session to view documentation on specific topics In particular the command updates points the user to documentation updates for each new version of Maple The Maple project was first conceived in the autumn of 1980 growing out of discussions on the state of symbolic computation at the University of Waterloo The authors wish to acknowledge many fruitful discussions with colleagues at the University of Waterloo particularly Morven Gen tleman Michael Malcolm and Frank Tompa It was recognized in these discussions that none of the locally available systems for symbolic computation provided the facilities that should be expected for symbolic computation in modern computing environments We concluded that since the basic design decisions for the then current symbolic systems such as ALTRAN CAMAL REDUCE and to design a new system MACSYMA were based on 1960 s computing technology it would be wise from scratch taking advantage of the software engineering technology which had become available since then as well as drawing from the lessons of experience Maple s basic features e g elementary data structures input output arithmetic with numbers and elementary simplification are coded in a systems programming language for efficiency     Computer Buyer's Guide and Handbook ,1998-02

Real Time Microcomputer Control of Industrial Processes S.G. Tzafestas,J.K. Pal,2012-12-06 The introduction of the microprocessor in computer and system engineering has motivated the development of many new concepts and has simplified the design of many modern industrial systems During the first decade of their life microprocessors have shown a tremendous evolution in all possible directions technology power functionality I O handling etc Of course putting the microprocessors and their environmental devices into properly operating systems is a complex and difficult task requiring high skills for melding and integrating hardware and systemic components software This book was motivated by the editors feeling that a cohesive reference is needed providing a good coverage of modern industrial applications of microprocessor based real time control together with latest advanced methodological issues Unavoidably a single volume cannot be exhaustive but the present book contains a sufficient number of important real time applications The book is divided in two sections Section I deals with general hardware software and systemic topics and involves six chapters Chapter 1 by Gupta and Toong presents an overview of the development of microprocessors during their first twelve years of existence Chapter 2 by Dasgupta deals with a number of system software concepts for real time microprocessor based systems task scheduling memory management input output aspects programming language requirements
