Parliament. House of Commons, 1842 Old Dartmouth on Trial Marilyn Tobias, 1982 In Old Dartmouth On Trial Marilyn Tobias successfully integrates into her account a number of existing studies on nineteenth century colleges and universities illuminating larger issues in the history of American education professionalization alumni demands for a voice in the governance of colleges and universities and the growth of the indirect power of students and faculty Stands as Exhibit A in a critical test case namely Can historical writing be meshed with organizational theory in the systematic study of higher education Thanks to Tobias s exemplary work the verdict is overwhelmingly favorable By refuting the stereotype of collegiate stagnation historian Tobias fills in crucial voids that are essential for better understanding of what David Riesman and Christopher Jencks call the university college of the mid twentieth century This work warns us that we should no longer be satisfied with chronicles of campus events that fail to connect with structural and policy studies will be most valuable if it reaches an audience of nonhistorians because it provides a superb model for using historical methods and perspective to probe organizational complexities It is good reading that enhances the real world tasks of institutional research and policy planning Journal of Higher Education A significant contribution to the literature documenting American institutions of the late nineteenth century This cohesive work explores the notion of changing community by focusing on a dramatic episode in Dartmouth s history While the roots of the controversy may be explained in part by the college s unique legacy Tobias carefully demonstrates how this model of community conflict is a reflection of the transformation taking place within the larger society will interest not only community historians but also educators and policy analysts This fine piece of historical analysis may well serve as a model for similar studies in the histories of community and education Public Historian An important addition to a small but growing list of monographs and scholarly articles that are revising our understanding of American colleges in the nineteenth century Eschewing traditional institutional history Marilyn Tobias has developed a more imaginative interpretive framework Through comparison and contrast of the public attitudes group roles and self conception of faculty students alumni and trustees of both eras Tobias demonstrates that Dartmouth underwent fundamental changes in institutional characteristics and educational mission In significant ways Tobias has broken methodologically with traditional college historians She has provided us with a number of new insights concerning the nineteenth century American college and she has furthered the efforts of certain contemporary historians to place the history of these colleges fully within the context of national cultural and institutional developments Journal of American History Brings educational history into the mainstream of current American historiography and removes Dartmouth from isolation By using a community studies approach and incorporating recent findings concerning the professions urban life and the antebellum colleges the author attempts to explain institutional change through factors outside of the college to connect higher education to the broader society and to establish an agenda and at minimum a vocabulary for the study of other educational institutions during the age of modernization The interpretation of the crisis at Dartmouth is attractive and useful Especially important for researchers is the incorporation of the role of trustees students and the scientific technological faculty History of Education Quarterly
