Tropical Forest Conservation And Industry Partnership An Experience From The Congo Basin:

Tropical Forest Conservation and Industry Partnership Connie J. Clark, John R. Poulsen, 2012-03-16 Historically the conservation of forests and wildlife has focused on the creation of national parks and reserves. However, only 9% of protected areas are larger than 14 000 hectares, likely making them too small to conserve ecosystem services and prevent loss of wide ranging keystone species such as elephant and leopard. New approaches are needed that extend conservation beyond protected area boundaries into areas where economic considerations prevail. The book describes one such emerging model of conservation: the integration of the private sector into partnerships to protect biodiversity and improve forest management. While such partnerships are being created in nearly every sector of resource extraction, detailed analyses of how such partnerships work and whether they benefit biodiversity conservation are rare. Using a case study from the Congo Basin, the book examines principles of conservation and partnership and provides technical and methodological details to replicate an innovative conservation model. It presents concrete solutions for expanding conservation across multi-use landscapes, a necessary action as industry expands to all the corners of the globe. Great apes and FSC: implementing 'ape friendly' practices in Central Africa's logging concessions, Corporate Responsibility and Sustainable Development Lez

Rayman-Bacchus, Philip Walsh, 2015-11-19 Corporate responsibility and sustainable development are two concepts that may be able to reconcile many of the big challenges facing the world: challenges such as tensions between respect for the natural environment, social justice and economic development; the long view versus short-term imperatives; and the competing priorities between developed and developing economies. This book explores the gaps and overlaps between corporate responsibility and sustainable development. These concerns overlap because they implicate corporate practices, state development policy, challenges the concerns and priorities of non-governmental organisations, and the potential for innovative forms of organisation to address these challenges. This collection examines these questions in terms of tensions and interdependencies between competing claims to resources, rights and responsibilities; strategy and governance between public and private interest; and the implications for equity and the common good over the long term. This is a valuable resource for researchers, lecturers, practitioners, postgraduate and final year undergraduates in business strategy, international business and international management, public sector policy and management, international development, political economy. It is also suitable for more specialist courses on sustainability, corporate responsibility, governance and international development. Protected Areas Lucas N. Joppa, Jonathan E. M. Bailie, John G. Robinson, 2016-02-10

Protected areas spearhead our response to the rapidly accelerating biodiversity crisis. However, while the number of protected areas has been growing rapidly over the past 20 years, the extent to which the world's protected areas are effectively conserving species, ecosystems and ecosystem services is poorly understood. Highlights new techniques for better management and monitoring of protected areas. Sets guidelines for the decision-making processes involved in setting up and maintaining protected areas Fully international in scope and covering all ecosystems and biomes Applied Population and Community Ecology Jim Hone, 2012-06-20 Part of the Zoological Society of London's Conservation Science and Practice Series Applied Population and Community Ecology evaluates theory in population and community ecology using a case study of feral pigs birds and plants in the high country of south eastern Australia In sequence the book reviews the relevant theory and uses long term research over a quarter of a century on the population ecology of feral pigs and then community ecology of birds and plants to evaluate the theory The book brings together into one volume research results of many observational experimental and modelling studies and directly compares them with those from related studies around the world The implications of the results for future wildlife management are also discussed Intended readers are ecologists graduate students in ecology and wildlife management and conservation and pest managers Elephants and Savanna Woodland Ecosystems Christina Skarpe, Johan T. du Toit, Stein R. Moe, 2014-04-02 During the nineteenth century ivory hunting caused a substantial decrease of elephant numbers in southern Africa Soon after that populations of many other large and medium sized herbivores went into steep decline due to the rinderpest pandemic in the 1890s These two events provided an opportunity for woodland establishment in areas previously intensively utilized by elephants and other herbivores The return of elephants to currently protected areas of their former range has greatly influenced vegetation locally and the resulting potential negative effects on biodiversity are causing concern among stakeholders managers and scientists This book focuses on the ecological effects of the increasing elephant population in northern Botswana presenting the importance of the elephants for the heterogeneity of the system and showing that elephant ecology involves much wider spatiotemporal scales than was previously thought Drawing on the results of their research the authors discuss elephant caused effects on vegetation in nutrient rich and nutrient poor savannas and the potential competition between elephants on the one hand and browsers and mixed feeders on the other Ultimately this text provides a comprehensive review of ecological processes in African savannas covering long term ecosystem changes and human wildlife conflicts It summarises new knowledge on the ecology of the sub humid African savanna ecosystems to advance the general functional understanding of savanna ecosystems across moisture and nutrient gradients Intact Forests Yadvinder Malhi, James E. M. Watson, Alexandra C. Morel, Tom Evans, 2021-09-23 Tropical Forest Update, 2002 The Conservation Atlas of Tropical Forests International Union for Conservation of Nature and Natural Resources, 1992 Africa's forests are being depleted at a faster rate than of any other continent A major increase in the population growth rate began after World War II and it is now running at an annual rate of 2.9 per cent resulting in massive demands for agricultural land water fuelwood and other products There is no simple answer to environmental degradation and forest conservation must be part of a broader process of managing the landscape Here to address this topic is the new Conservation Atlas of Tropical Forests Africa the first authoritative reference work on this subject The second in a series this Conservation Atlas follows the format of the acclaimed Conservation Atlas of Tropical Forests Asia and the Pacific 1991 Part I describes the issues history of forests and climate biological diversity conservation of large mammals and the peoples of the forests Included are discussions of the links between population environment and agriculture the timber trade protected areas system and the future for Africa s forests Part II of the Atlas is a country by country survey of the forests of Africa Stunning four color maps in a 9 x 12 format have been compiled from satellite and radar imagery aerial photography and the latest information provided by forestry departments and development agencies Both maps and text have been prepared and reviewed by a broad spectrum of specialists The Atlas also includes four color photographs and sketch maps They represent the best visual portfolio available of Africa s forests today For anyone interested in environmental issues geography forestry development economics and the African region this Atlas will be an essential resource
