Minority Rights in the Pacific Region Joshua Castellino, David Keane, 2009 Countries in the Pacific face unique challenges of survival and progress in establishing themselves and participating fully in international society Their geographic isolation from the rest of global society is compounded by complex layers of often competing national and indigenous identities among their populations built through wave upon wave of migration This has created rich diversity competing regimes and real challenges in terms of state building ethnic identity social policy cohesion and development in post colonial settings The issues studied here would be of interest to scholars from a range of different disciplines such as Law Politics Sociology and Anthropology By examining the theory and practice of minority rights law in states such as Fiji and Papua New Guinea alongside their more familiar neighbours Australia and New Zealand this book makes a unique contribution in a region often ignored in the literature

Racism in the Modern World Manfred Berg, Simon Wendt, 2011-04-01 Emphasizing the global nature of racism this volume brings together historians from various regional specializations to explore this phenomenon from comparative and transnational perspectives The essays shed light on how racial ideologies and practices developed changed and spread in Europe Asia the Near East Australia and Africa focusing on processes of transfer exchange appropriation and adaptation To what extent for example were racial beliefs of Western origin Did similar belief systems emerge in non Western societies independently of Western influence And how did these societies adopt and adapt Western racial beliefs once they were exposed to them Up to this point the few monographs or edited collections that exist only provide students of the history of racism with tentative answers to these questions More importantly the authors of these studies tend to ignore transnational processes of exchange and transfer Yet as this volume shows these are crucial to an understanding of the diffusion of racial belief systems around the globe Writing Home Glenn Morrison, 2017-01-30 Writing Home explores the literary representation of Australian places by those who have walked them In particular it examines how Aboriginal and settler narratives of walking have shaped portrayals of Australia's Red Centre and consequently ideas of nation and belonging Central Australia has long been characterised as a frontier the supposed divide between black and white ancient and modern But persistently representing it in this way is preventing Australians from re imagining this internationally significant region as home Writing Home argues that the frontier no longer adequately describes Central Australia and that the Aboriginal songlines make a significant but under acknowledged contribution to Australian discourses of hybridity belonging and home Drawing on anthropology cultural theory journalism politics and philosophy the book traces shifting perceptions of Australian place and space since precolonial times through six recounted walking journeys of the Red Centre

Growing up Indigenous: Developing Effective Pedagogy for Education and Development R.M. Nichol, 2011-07-23 This is a fascinating account of traditional socialisation and Indigenous forms of learning in Australia and Melanesia It draws from rich ethnographic historical and educational material There has never been a greater need for a socially and historically informed yet critical account of the mismatch between traditional ways realities of life in Indigenous communities villages and enclaves and the forms of education provided in schools Raymond Nichol a specialist in Indigenous education and pedagogy surveys the links too often disparities between ethnographic detail of life on the ground and the schooling provided by nation states in this vast region Most importantly he explores and suggests ways community developers and educators Indigenous and non Indigenous may work to bridge the gaps in social rights educational and economic development This is relevant for all Indigenous communities their survival and development Many vexed issues are discussed such as race ethnicity identity discrimination self determination development and relevant effective pedagogical learning and schooling strategies Genocide and Settler Society A. Dirk Moses, 2005-03-01 Colonial Genocide has been seen increasingly as a stepping stone to the European genocides of the twentieth century yet it remains an under researched phenomenon This volume reconstructs instances of Australian genocide and for the first time places them in a global context Beginning with the arrival of the British in 1788 and extending to the 1960s the authors identify the moments of radicalization and the escalation of British violence and ethnic engineering aimed at the Indigenous populations while carefully distinguishing between local massacres cultural genocide and genocide itself

These essays reflect a growing concern with the nature of settler society in Australia and in particular with the fate of the tens of thousands of children who were forcibly taken away from their Aboriginal families by state agencies. Long considered a relatively peaceful settlement, Australian society contained many of the pathologies that led to the exterminatory and eugenic policies of twentieth century Europe.

Policing the Rural Crisis Russell Hogg, Kerry Carrington, 2006 There is a growing sense of crisis in rural ways of life which manifests itself in economic decline, depopulation, depleted environments and a crisis of rural identities. Crime is one potent marker of crisis, the more so as it spoils the image of healthy, cohesive community. The social reaction it elicits, the policing of this 'other rural', is also a guide to the dimensions of crisis. The social sciences have witnessed a renewed international interest in the study of 'other rurals', the neglected, invisible or excluded aspects of country life. This book brings a fresh approach to the study of crime that challenges the urban-centric assumptions of much western criminology and sociology. It explores rural crime and social reactions to it in relation to processes and patterns of community formation and change in rural Australia, including the social, economic, cultural and political forces shaping the history, structure and everyday life of rural communities. Policing the Rural Crisis is based on five years of extensive original empirical research in rural and regional Australia. It draws on ideas and debates in contemporary social theory across several disciplines, making the analysis relevant to the study of crime and social change elsewhere.

Transnational Feminist Itineraries Ashwini Tambe, Millie Thayer, 2021-07-06 Transnational Feminist Itineraries brings together scholars and activists from multiple continents to demonstrate the ongoing importance of transnational feminist theory in challenging neoliberal globalization and the rise of authoritarian nationalisms around the world. The contributors illuminate transnational feminism's unique constellation of elements, its specific mode of thinking across scales, its historical understanding of identity categories and its expansive imagining of solidarity based on difference rather than similarity. Contesting the idea that transnational feminism works in opposition to other approaches, especially intersectional and decolonial feminisms, this volume instead argues for their complementarity. Throughout, the contributors call for reaching across social, ideological and geographical boundaries to better confront the growing reach of nationalism.
