Rethinking the Coordinate-Subordinate Dichotomy Jean-Christophe Verstraete,2011-12-22 This study argues that the domain traditionally covered by coordination and subordination in English can be subdivided into four distinct construction types The constructions are defined on the basis of differences in their interpersonal structure i e the grammatical encoding of speaker attitude and speaker interlocutor interaction It is shown that the four types constitute syntactically semantically and pragmatically coherent categories with differences in interpersonal structure defining and motivating distinct syntactic behaviour distinct pragmatic functions and distinct semantic classes of clause linkage The validity of the analysis is demonstrated in three ways First it is shown that the analysis can make sense of the wide range of apparently conflicting criteria found in the literature on complex sentences which can now be explained as reflections of four different construction types rather than as alternative perspectives on one single contrast between coordination and subordination Second it is shown how the analysis can deal with two specific problems in the more general area of clause combining viz the syntactic basis of the distinction between content epistemic and speech act levels of clause linkage and the distinct discursive functions associated with initial and final position of adverbial clauses Finally it is also shown that the proposed analysis is useful beyond the analysis of English with parallels in a number of cross linguistically recurrent phenomena of clause linkage The book is mainly of interest to linguistics researchers in the areas of syntax semantics and pragmatics as well as to graduate students with a focus on these fields

Testing of Materials for Fire Protection Needs Linda Makovická Osvaldová,Widya Fatriasari,2023-09-04 This book offers an overview of European testing methods for fire protection materials Used in a broad range of applications these materials are designed to ensure that fires do not occur or that their effects are combated to the greatest extent possible The book deals with methods not only for the construction industry but also for example for furniture interior furnishings plastics and clothing including special purpose clothing for firefighters and rescuers explosive mixtures the intensity of smoke etc This comprehensive book examines standardized testing methods while also assessing large scale tests and specialized non standardized tests and providing information on various materials and their behavior when exposed to flame

Concise Encyclopedia of Construction Terms and Phrases Karl F. Schmid, 2013-11-04 This is the first up to date comprehensive reference on building construction terms and phrases to have been published in recent years The coverage will be wide ranging from familiar terms like concrete to arcane terms like elutriator Entries are explained in terms of their use in specific types of construction Common construction math formulas are also explained The book will provide ample resources for further reference and study including listings of relevant associations and societies as well as governmental agencies involved with the construction industry
