Information and Communication Technologies for Sustainable Tourism Alisha Ali, Andrew Frew, 2013-05-07 Sustainable development is a highly topical issue and is of critical importance to tourism as the environment is of utmost importance for the continued development and prosperity of the industry There have been numerous texts written on sustainable tourism and the measures to mitigate and manage this but none which acknowledges Information and Communication Technologies ICT as a mechanism of doing so despite being an emerging area of research ICT in this context refers to innovative tools which form an integrated system of software and networked equipment that facilitates data processing information sharing communication and the ability to search and select from an existing range of products and services for an organisation s benefits Despite the symbiotic relationship which exists between ICT and sustainable tourism there has been little research which has considered how the use of such technology can be used to make sustainable tourism development a more workable reality This opportune book is the first to provide a focus on the interrelationship of these two important topics demonstrating their synergies and providing insight into a new and innovative approach to managing sustainable tourism development It considers the use of technology to reduce the negative impacts of tourism from both the demand and supply side perspectives A critical review of a range of cutting edge technologies used by tourists and businesses to assess their usefulness in managing sustainable tourism development from the macro to the micro level is also discussed. It further integrates examples and practical applications to show how ICT can be an invaluable mechanism in the management of sustainable tourism development. This cutting edge volume provides a wealth of information on an important yet neglected subject. This book will be invaluable reading for students, researchers, academics and members of the tourism industry looking for new and innovative ways of fostering a more sustainable tourism industry.

Quality-of-Life Community Indicators for Parks, Recreation and Tourism

Management Megha Budruk, Rhonda Phillips, 2010-11-25 While community quality of life indicators are gaining much needed attention in both scholarly work and practice, their application in the areas of parks, recreation and tourism management are not as well known. The applicability of indicator systems for natural resource and natural resource area management within the parks and recreation arena is very high, including urban parks and recreation programs and their influence on quality of life. Tourism is also an area that needs much more work in terms of assessing impacts as well as developing indicators for gauging progress in the long term. All three areas are an integrated discipline and most programs throughout the developed world are housed jointly. There are several researchers across the globe who are conducting innovative work in these areas. The editors feel that a volume on the topic will spur additional interests as well as serve to lead the research efforts.

Handbook for Sustainable Tourism Practitioners Anna Spenceley, 2021-04-30 Offering how to tools and step by step guidance, this practical Handbook combines academic insight with extensive professional experience to outline best practice in undertaking environmental, socio cultural and economic assessments that establish the feasibility of new tourism ventures and ascertain their impact over time.

Sustainable Tourism David A. Fennell, Chris Cooper, 2020-01-30 This new textbook provides a comprehensive overview of sustainable tourism framed around the UN's sustainable development goals. It examines the origins and dimensions of sustainable tourism and offers a detailed account of sustainable initiatives and management across destinations, the tourism industry, public sector and leading agencies. The book explores the principal values and priorities in sustainable development through a better understanding of values, ethics and human nature. It covers a broad range of studies from an array of disciplinary perspectives and includes learning objectives, discussion questions and international case studies throughout. It is an important text for students and researchers in tourism and sustainability.

Ecotourism and Environmental Sustainability Jennifer Louise Hill, Tim Gale, 2009 Drawing on a diverse series of international case studies, this book offers conceptual and practical insights into the complex interactions between ecotourism and the natural environment. The result is a critical examination of ecotourism and environmental sustainability that highlights ideas for best practice and proposes new directions for future research.

Handbook of Sustainable Development and Leisure Services Adrian Lubowiecki-Vikuk, Bruno Miguel Barbosa de Sousa, Bojan M. Derčan, Walter Leal Filho, 2021-01-16 This book reviews empirical and theoretical research on sustainable development in the context of leisure management for communities. Although leading research centers are pursuing interdisciplinary research on leisure in the context of sustainable development there are still few papers that holistically address the current challenges in this area. In addition, demographic changes have made the promotion of a healthy lifestyle essential. Doing so requires responsible behavior on the part of various stakeholders in this market. This book fills an important gap in the literature and gathers contributions from an interdisciplinary and international team of authors whose fields of expertise include human geography, management, intersections of sustainability and leisure, behavioral psychology, and tourism.

Environmental Management for Rural Tourism and Recreation John Tribe, 2000. Increasing tourism to rural destinations has created a greater awareness of tourism's strain and destructive impact on the environment. Practical solutions to delicate problems are being sought. This book, the result of the EU-funded TOURFOR project, brings together the very best of current thinking and synthesizes it in a way that will be useful to practitioners and students alike.

Forest Tourism and Recreation Xavier Font, John Tribe, 2000-01. The demand for ecotourism and outdoor recreation is increasing, and the pressures on land use are becoming more obvious. A large part of the experience of ecotourism and recreational landscape depends on the maintenance of forested land. Effective management of tourism and recreation in forests can provide extra income to help offset the costs of sustainable timber production and encourage biodiversity conservation. This book considers the compatibility between tourism, forestry, and conservation; the management of natural resources; and the involvement of stakeholders and the community. After an introductory chapter, issues are presented through 16 case studies (chapters 2-17) from a range of countries including the UK, Canada, Costa Rica, Estonia, Nepal, New Zealand, and Singapore. Topics covered include national parks, peri-urban forestry, and wilderness management, as well as practitioner-oriented contributions from the UK on Center Parcs, the National Trust, and the Forest of Merica. The case studies are arranged in 2 sections: Part I, Issues and problems (2-10), and Part II, Strategies and solutions (11-17). The book provides a challenging review for both academic and professional readers in tourism and recreation, environmental conservation, and rural geography.

The Geography of Tourism and Recreation C. Michael Hall, Stephen J. Page, 2014-05-09. This fourth edition of The Geography of Tourism and Recreation provides students with a comprehensive introduction to the interrelationship between tourism, leisure, and recreation from geographical and social science perspectives. It still remains the only book to systematically compare and contrast in a spatial context tourism and recreation in relation to leisure time, offering insight into the demand-supply planning, destination management, and impacts of tourism and recreation. Whilst retaining its accessible style and approach, this edition has been significantly updated to reflect recent developments and new concepts from geography which are beginning to permeate the tourism and recreational field. New features include content on the most recent developments: climate change, sustainability, mobilities, and crisis management in time and space, as well as trends such as low-cost airlines and the control of land transport by transnational operators in the EU such as Arriva. More attention is given to management issues such as innovation and the spatial consequences for tourism and leisure development. New case studies and examples showcase real-life issues.

from both developed and developing countries especially the US China and South Africa Completely revised and redeveloped to accommodate new user friendly features case studies insights summary points and learning objectives Written by leading academics this is essential reading for all tourism geography leisure and recreation students A Research Agenda for Sustainable Tourism Stephen F. McCool, Keith Bosak, Exploring tourism in an increasingly valuable landscape this forward looking book examines the importance of the sustainability of global travel Leading authors in the field outline the major trajectories for research helpful in developing a sustainable and environmentally minded industry The Geography of Tourism and Recreation Colin Michael Hall, Stephen Page, 2006 This text now in its fully updated third edition continues to offer a comprehensive synthesis of the key issues associated with tourism leisure and recreation Assessing the Sustainability of Nature-based Tourism Or Recreation Along Florida National Scenic Trail Bin Wan, 2012 The sustainability of nature based tourism recreation was assessed from a socio ecological approach at recreation areas along the Florida National Scenic Trail FNST At recreation area level key indicators were quantified in order to describe nature based tourism recreation areas in three key dimensions 1 attractiveness 2 ecological sensitivity and 3 nature tourism based system risk factors
