Maurice, Henry Stebbing, Charles Wentworth Dilke, Thomas Kibble Hervey, William Hepworth Dixon, Norman Maccoll, Vernon Horace Rendall, John Middleton Murry, 1859 The Other Empire John Marriott, 2003 This is a detailed study of the various ways in which London and India were imaginatively constructed by British observers during the nineteenth century This process took place within a unified field of knowledge that brought together travel and evangelical accounts to exert a formative influence on the creation of London and India for the domestic reading public Their distinct narratives rhetoric and chronologies forged homologies between representations of the metropolitan poor and colonial subjects those constituencies that were seen as the most threatening to imperial progress Thus the poor and particular sections of the Indian population were inscribed within discourses of western civilization as regressive and inferior peoples Over time these discourses increasingly promoted notions of overt and rigid racial hierarchies of which a legacy still remains Drawing upon cultural and intellectual history this comparative study seeks to rethink the location of the poor and India within the nineteenth century imagination Respectability and the London Poor, 1780-1870 Lynn MacKay, 2015-10-06 The population of London soared during the Industrial Revolution and the poorer areas became iconic places of overcrowding and vice Focusing on the communities of Westminster MacKay shows that many of the plebeian populace retained traditional working class pursuits such as gambling drinking and blood sports The Quarterly Review ,1865 The Athenaeum ,1859 Open Houses Barbara Leckie, 2018-05-24 In the 1830s and 40s a new preoccupation with the housing of the poor emerged in British print and visual culture In response to cholera outbreaks political unrest and government initiatives commentators evinced a keen desire to document housing conditions and agitate for housing reform Consistently and strikingly these efforts focused on opening the domestic interiors of the poor to public view In Open Houses Barbara Leckie addresses the massive body of print materials dedicated to convincing the reader of the wretchedness unworthiness and antipoetic quality of the living conditions of the poor and accordingly the urgent need for architectural reform Putting these exposés into dialogue with the Victorian novel and the architectural idea the manipulation of architecture and the built environment to produce certain effects she illustrates the ways in which looking into the house animated new models for social critique and fictional form As housing conditions failed to improve despite the ubiquity of these documentary and fictional exposés commentators became increasingly skeptical about the capacity of print to generate change Focusing on Bleak House Middlemarch and The Princess Casamassima Leckie argues that writers offered a persuasive counterargument for the novel's intervention in social debates Open Houses returns the architectural idea to the central position it occupied in nineteenth century England and reconfigures how we understand innovations in the genre of the novel the agitation for social reform and the contours of nineteenth century modernity Bookseller's catalogues George Harding (ltd.), 1884 Athenaeum and Literary Chronicle ,1859 The London Quarterly Review ,1865 Quarterly Review ,1865 Amusements, and the need of supplying healthy recreations for the people. Second edition George HUNTINGTON (Rector of Tenby.), 1868
