Wolfsfeld, 2011-06-23 Politics is above all a contest and the news media are the central arena for viewing that competition One of the central concerns of political communication has to do with the myriad ways in which politics has an impact on the news media and the equally diverse ways in which the media influences politics Both of these aspects in turn weigh heavily on the effects such political communication has on mass citizens In Making Sense of Media and Politics Gadi Wolfsfeld introduces readers to the most important concepts that serve as a framework for examining the interrelationship of media and politics political power can usually be translated into power over the news media when authorities lose control over the political environment they also lose control over the news there is no such thing as objective journalism nor can there be the media are dedicated more than anything else to telling a good story the most important effects of the news media on citizens tend to be unintentional and unnoticed By identifying these five key principles of political communication the author examines those who package and send political messages those who transform political messages into news and the effect all

Women Politicians and the Media Maria Braden, 2021-09-15 All American politicians face the glare of media coverage both in running for office and in representing their constituents if elected But for women seeking or holding high public office as Maria Braden demonstrates the scrutiny by newspapers and television can be both withering and damaging a fact that has changed little over the decades despite the emergence of more women in politics and more women in the news media Particularly disturbing is the fact that the increase in the number of women reporters appears to have had little effect on the way women candidates are portrayed in the media Some women reporters in fact seem intent on proving that they can be just as tough on women candidates as their male counterparts thus perpetuating the misrepresentations of the past Braden examines the political fortunes of Jeannette Rankin the first woman elected to the U S House those of the congressional glamour girls of the 1940s Clare Boothe Luce and Helen Gahagan Douglas the long Senate career of Margaret Chase Smith the political struggles of diverse women of more recent decades including Bella Abzug Elizabeth Holtzman Nancy Kassebaum Barbara Jordan Dianne Feinstein and Ann Richards and the disastrous vice presidential bid of Geraldine Ferraro Braden traces a persistent double standard in media coverage of women s political campaigns through the past eighty years Journalists dwell on the candidates novelty in public office and describe them in ways that stereotype and trivialize them Especially demeaning are comments on women s appearance personality and family connections comments of a sort that would rarely be made about men candidates Are they too pretty or too plain What do their clothes say about them Are they feminine enough or too masculine Are they still just ordinary housewives or are they neglecting their families by heading for Washington or the state house Braden s study is based on both media accounts and the revealing personal interviews she conducted with a broad range of recent women politicians including Margaret Chase Smith Bella Abzug Kay Bailey Hutchison Nancy Kassebaum and Ann Richards All describe agonizing struggles to get across to the public the message that they are serious and competent candidates capable of holding high office and shaping our nation s course

Communication, Power, and Media Donald Gibson, 2004 The communication potential of contemporary mass media is immense It can communicate with us about the entire world and it can stimulate and inspire us with entertainment The realisation of this potential has been frustrated by interrelated networks of people who have controlled major media over the last century Those interests see media as a means to control and manipulate people rather than as a means to inform and inspire people The approach in this book moves beyond the abstractions and systems approaches often used in criticisms of media to an analysis focused on the concrete groups that dominate media These groups do constitute a system but one that must be understood in its terms of all of its historical features economic political and social
