Urban Land Management Practices Perspectives:

Urban Land Management Practices :Good Governance Perspectives Takele Necha,2015-12-24 This is a study in urban land management from the standpoint of adjudged principles of good governance against the background of policy law and regulation deployed to govern the administration and control of the land resource Urban land is nearly always in short supply due to high and intense competition from different interest groups In an open and free market situation where land is privately owned these competing interests are easily resolved through the price system a rather powerful tool that efficiently allocates available land to those who have the financial capacity In Ethiopia urban land is public property and supply is subject to delivery processes prescribed by law and policy and exercised directly by public agency However poor enforcement and implementation of policy and legislature is the most common problem in the Cities of Ethiopia Land policy and land use planning can efficiently be implemented if good governance principles are in place But the land management system was beset by lack of good governance which poses challenges on orderly development of the City that undoubtedly resulted in unregulated informal settlements

Urban Land Systems: An Ecosystems Perspective Andrew Millington,Harini Nagendra,Monika Kopecká,2018-07-02 This book is a printed edition of the Special Issue Urban Land Systems An

Urban Land Markets Somik V. Lall, Mila Freire, Belinda Yuen, Robin Rajack, Jean-Jacques Helluin, 2009-10-07 As urbanization progresses at a remarkable pace policy makers and analysts come to understand and agree on key features that will make this process more efficient and inclusive leading to gains in the welfare of citizens Drawing on insights from economic geography and two centuries of experience in developed countries the World Bank s World Development Report 2009 Reshaping Economic Geography emphasizes key aspects that are fundamental to ensuring an efficient rural urban transformation Critical among these are land as the most important resource and well functioning land markets Regardless of the stage of urbanization flexible and forward looking institu ons that help the efficient functioning of land markets are the bedrock of succe ful urbanization strategies In particular institutional arrangements for allocating land rights and for managing and regulating land use have significant implica ons for how cities deliver agglomeration economies and improve the welfare of their residents Property rights well functioning land markets and the management and servicing of land required to accommodate urban expansion and provide trunk infrastructure are all topics that arise as regions progress from incipient urbani tion to medium and high density

Selected Water Resources Abstracts ,1987 Urban Ecology John Marzluff,Eric Shulenberger,Wilfried Endlicher,marina Alberti,Gordon Bradley,Clare Ryan,Craig ZumBrunnen,Ute Simon,2008-01-03 Urban Ecology is a rapidly growing field of academic and practical significance Urban ecologists have published several conference proceedings and regularly contribute to the ecological architectural planning and geography literature However important papers in the field that set the foundation for the discipline and illustrate modern approaches from a variety of perspectives and regions of the world have not been collected in a single accessible book Foundations of Urban Ecology does this by reprinting important European and American publications filling gaps in the published literature with a few targeted original works and translating key works originally published in German This edited volume will provide students and professionals with a rich background in all facets of urban ecology The editors emphasize the drivers patterns processes and effects of human settlement The papers they synthesize provide readers with a broad understanding of the local and global aspects of settlement through traditional natural and social science lenses This interdisciplinary vision gives the reader a comprehensive view of the urban ecosystem by introducing drivers patterns processes and effects of human settlements and the relationships between humans and other animals plants ecosystem processes and abiotic conditions The reader learns how human institutions health and preferences influence and are influenced by the others members of their shared urban ecosystem

Perspectives on Nonpoint Source Pollution ,1985 Smart Economy in Smart Cities T. M. Vinod Kumar,2016-08-25 The present book highlights studies that show how smart cities promote urban economic development The book surveys the state of the art of Smart City Economic Development through a literature survey The book uses 13 in depth city research case studies in 10 countries such as the North America Europe Africa and Asia to explain how a smart economy changes the urban spatial system and vice versa This book focuses on exploratory city studies in different countries which investigate how urban spatial systems adapt to the specific needs of smart urban economy The theory of smart city economic development is not yet entirely understood and applied in metropolitan regional plans Smart urban economies are largely the result of the influence of ICT applications on all aspects of urban economy which in turn changes the land use system It points out that the dynamics of smart city GDP creation takes different paths which need further empirical study hypothesis testing and mathematical modelling Although there are hypotheses on how smart cities generate wealth and social benefits for nations there are no significant empirical studies available on how they generate urban economic development through urban spatial adaptation This book with 13 cities research studies is one attempt to fill in the gap in knowledge base Achieving Water-Energy-Food Nexus Sustainability: A Science and Data Need or a Need for Integrated Public Policy? Richard George Lawford, Rabi Mohtar, Jill A. Network of Associations of Local Authorities of South-East Europe, Innovations for Land Management, Governance, and Land Rights for Sustainable Urban Transitions Ahmed M. Soliman, Ramin Keivani, 2024-07-27 The transformation of the built environment during the last few decades has placed enormous demands for land About 7.7 billion people live on the planet which is expected to increase by 2.53 billion in just 30 years with the highest growth projected to be in less developed regions The spreading of urban informality in cities of the Global South leads to chaotic informal economies and an inability to capitalize on urban rural economies of scale and exchange The combination of socioeconomic and climate change vulnerability in urban centres is having a double impact on already poverty stricken and marginalized groups especially women racialized and ethnic minority groups leading to what has come to be known as climate injustice Land constitutes a main component of urban development and is the main asset for informal urban communities in the Middle East region The State and urban planners can aim to regulate the growth of informal land markets or represent the interests of the citizens However in reality the increasing retreat or absence of the public authorities the crisis of confidence between the governed and governing and the deficit of urban policies to address the multitude of generated challenges cannot be concealed This volume examines three main themes land management and governance in the era of sustainability Legal informal and illegal land tenures and the broader socioeconomic changes impacting land and housing delivery It investigates the correlations transitions and interactions between the various forces and multi stakeholders that control and adjust the land delivery system for low income groups and the urban poor This includes exploring mechanisms for correcting urban inequalities between central and peripheral quarters and the modes of shared governance Finally the volume also discusses developing national land policies based on legal instruments that connect the implementation of the SDGs land and tenure security as critical drivers for more sustainable land delivery realization
