were temporary workers and their families 32.2% 0.59 million were students and their families 13.1% 0.24 million were exchange visitors and families and 3.8% 0.07 million were diplomats other representatives and their families Although most nonimmigrants must demonstrate that they are not coming to reside permanently in the United States many ultimately adjust their status to become legal permanent residents The law and regulations set terms for nonimmigrant lengths of stay in the United States typically have foreign residency requirements and often limit what aliens are permitted to do in the United States e.g. gain employment or enroll in school but many observers assert that the policies are not uniformly or rigorously enforced Achieving an optimal balance among major policy priorities such as ensuring national security facilitating trade and commerce protecting public health and safety and fostering international cooperation remains a challenge The High-tech Worker Shortage and U.S. Immigration Policy United States. While anecdotal evidence suggests that interest groups play a key role in shaping immigration policy there is no systematic empirical analysis of this issue In this paper we construct an industry level dataset for the United States by combining information on the number of temporary work visas with data on lobbying activity associated with immigration We find robust evidence that both pro and anti immigration interest groups play a statistically significant and economically relevant role in shaping migration across sectors Barriers to migration are lower in sectors in which business interest groups incur larger lobby expenditures and higher in sectors where labor unions are more important U.S. Immigration Policy Council on Foreign Relations. Independent Task Force on U.S. Immigration Policy, Jeb Bush, Thomas F. McLarty, Edward H. Alden, 2009 The Council on Foreign Relations sponsors Independent Task Forces to assess issues of current and critical importance to U S foreign policy and provide policy makers with concrete judgments and recommendations Diverse in backgrounds and perspectives Task Force members aim to reach a meaningful consensus on policy through private and nonpartisan deliberations Once launched Task Forces are independent of CFR and solely responsible for the content of their reports Task Force members are asked to join a consensus signifying that they endorse the general policy thrust and judgments reached by the group though not necessarily every finding and recommendation Each Task Force member also has the option of putting forward an additional or dissenting view Members affiliations are listed for identification purposes only and do not imply institutional endorsement Task Force observers participate in discussions but are not asked to join the consensus
