Zur Theorie Erkennens Durch Gesichtssinn:

Helmholtz's Treatise on Physiological Optics Hermann von Helmholtz, 1925, The Natural and the Normative Gary Carl Hatfield, 1990 Gary Hatfield examines theories of spatial perception from the seventeenth to the nineteenth century and provides a detailed analysis of the works of Kant and Helmholtz who adopted opposing stances on whether central questions about spatial perception were amenable to natural scientific treatment At stake were the proper understanding of the relationships among sensation perception and experience and the proper methodological framework for investigating the mental activities of judgment understanding and reason issues which remain at the core of philosophical psychology and cognitive science Hatfield presents these important issues as living philosophies of science that shape and are shaped by actual research programs creating a complex and fascinating picture of the entire nineteenth century battle between nativism and empiricism His examination of Helmholtz's work in physiological optics and epistemology is a tour de force Gary Hatfield is Associate Professor of Philosophy at the University of Pennsylvania

Treatise on Physiological Optics, Volume III Hermann von Helmholtz, 2013-09-04 The most important work ever produced in the field of physiological optics this classic is a model of scientific method and logical procedure and it remains unmatched in its thorough and accessible approach This is the third in a three volume republication of the definitive English translation of Handbuch der Physiologischen Optik originally published by The Optical Society of America in 1924 and containing everything that was known about physiological optics up until that time The substratum consists of the data that Helmholtz furnished in the two nineteenth century German editions that appeared during his lifetime These volumes also contain extensive supplementary matter that Nagel Gullstrand and Kries incorporated in the third German edition of 1911 as well as significant new material prepared for the 1924 English translation by C Ladd Franklin Gullstrand and Kries with copious annotations by James P C Southall that brought the work up to date with current research Volumes I and II discuss the dioptrics of the eye and the sensations of vision Volume III examines the perceptions of vision Its topics include eye movements the monocular field of vision direction of vision perception of depth binocular vision and many other highly important topics Appendixes cover later findings on spatial configuration in vision and the theory of binocular instruments Indexes for all three volumes are organized by subject and author
