Totem and Taboo Sigmund Freud, 2015-11-16

PRIMITIVE man is known to us by the stages of development through which he has passed that is through the inanimate monuments and implements which he has left behind for us through our knowledge of his art his religion and his attitude towards life which we have received either directly or through the medium of legends myths and fairy tales and through the remnants of his ways of thinking that survive in our own manners and customs Moreover in a certain sense he is still our contemporary there are people whom we still consider more closely related to primitive man than to ourselves in whom we therefore recognize the direct descendants and representatives of earlier man We can thus judge the so-called savage and semi-savage races their psychic life assumes a peculiar interest for us for we can recognize in their psychic life a well-preserved early stage of our own development If this assumption is correct a comparison of the Psychology of Primitive Races as taught by folklore with the psychology of the neurotic as it has become known through psychoanalysis will reveal numerous points of correspondence and throw new light on subjects that are more or less familiar to us For outer as well as for inner reasons I am choosing for this comparison those tribes which have been described by ethnographers as being most backward and wretched the aborigines of the youngest continent namely Australia whose fauna has also been preserved for us so much that is archaic and no longer to be found elsewhere

Totem and Taboo Sigmund Freud, 2020-01-31 In this brilliant exploratory attempt written in 1912 1913 to extend the analysis of the individual psyche to society and culture Freud laid the lines for much of his later thought and made a major contribution to the psychology of religion Primitive societies and the individual he found mutually illuminate each other and the psychology of primitive races bears marked resemblances to the psychology of neurotics Basing his investigations on the findings of the anthropologists Freud came to the conclusion that totemism and its accompanying restriction of exogamy derive from the savage's dread of incest and that taboo customs parallel closely the symptoms of compulsion neurosis The killing of the primal father and the consequent sense of guilt are seen as determining events both in the misty tribal pre history of mankind and in the suppressed wishes of individual men Both totemism and taboo are thus held to have their roots in the Oedipus complex which lies at the basis of all neurosis and as Freud argues is also the origin of religion ethics society and art
