Conceptual Modeling - ER 2005 Christian Kop, Heinrich C. Mayr, John Mylopoulos, Óscar Pastor, 2005-10-11 Conceptual modeling is fundamental to any domain where one must cope with complex real world situations and systems because it fosters communication between technology experts and those who would benefit from the application of those technologies Conceptual modeling is the key mechanism for understanding and representing the domains of information system and database engineering but also increasingly for other domains including the new virtual environments and the information system that support them The importance of conceptual modeling in software engineering is evidenced by recent interest in model driven architecture and extreme programming Conceptual modeling also plays a prominent role in various technical disciplines and in the social sciences The Annual International Conference on Conceptual Modeling referred to as the ER Conference provides a central forum for presenting and discussing current research and applications in which conceptual modeling is the major emphasis In keeping with this tradition ER 2005 the 24th ER Conference spanned the spectrum of conceptual modeling including research and practice in areas such as theories of concepts and ontologies underlying conceptual modeling methods and tools for developing and communicating conceptual models and techniques for transforming conceptual models into effective information system implementations Moreover new areas of conceptual modeling including Semantic Web services and the interdependencies of conceptual modeling with knowledge based logical and linguistic theories and approaches were also addressed

As a consequence of the very tight interaction between the Lecture Notes in Computer Science series and the international computer science research and development community, we receive quite a few proposals for new archive journals. From the successful launch of workshops or conferences and publication of their proceedings in the LNCS series, it might seem like a natural step to approach the publisher about launching a journal once this specific field has gained a certain level of maturity and stability. Each year we receive about a dozen such proposals and even more informal inquiries. Like other publishers, it has been our experience that launching a new journal and making it a long-term success is a hard job nowadays due to a generally difficult market situation and library budget restrictions in particular. Because many of the proceedings in LNCS and especially many of the LNCS proceedings apply the same strict reviewing and selection criteria as established journals, we started discussing with proposers of new journals the alternative of devoting a few volumes in LNCS to their field instead of going through the painful Sisyphean adventure of establishing a new journal on its own.
