The Black Newspaper and the Chosen Nation Benjamin Fagan, 2016 Benjamin Fagan shows how the early black press helped shape the relationship between black chosenness and the struggles for black freedom and equality in America in the process transforming the very notion of a chosen American nation Welcome to Our Minds Arthur, 2001-04-29 A composite picture of a girl in a strait jacket sitting inside an eye This is surrounded by four color wedges clock wise they are brown green blue and purple

Radical Unionism in the Midwest, 1900-1950 Rosemary Feurer, 2006 In Radical Unionism in the Midwest 1900 1950 Rosemary Feurer examines the fierce battles between Midwestern electrical workers and bitterly anti union electrical and metal industry companies during the 1930s and 40s Organized as District 8 of the United Electrical Radio and Machine Workers UE and led by open Communist William Sentner workers developed a style of unionism designed to confront corporate power and to be a force for social transformation in their community and nation Feurer studies District 8 through a long lens establishing early twentieth century contexts for these conflicts Exploring the role of radicals in local movement formation Feurer argues for a civic unionism that could connect community and union concerns to build solidarity and contest the political economy District 8 s spirited unionism included plant occupations in St Louis and Iowa campaigns to democratize economic planning and local strategies for national bargaining that were depicted as a Communist conspiracy by a corporate influenced Congressional committee in Evansville Indiana District 8 was destroyed through reactionary networks and the anti Communist backlash of the mid twentieth century but Feurer argues that its history tells another side of the labor movement s formation in the 1930s and 40s and can inform current struggles against corporate power in the modern global economy A website with more photographs and documents is available at www.radicalunionism.niu.edu

On the Edge of America Paul J. Karlstrom, 1996-01-01 The past quarter century has witnessed the emergence of a scholarly appreciation of American art in California Yet assessments of the early modern pre 1950 have been haphazard Now in one bold volume these scholars have remedied that deficiency Thanks to the rich essays of this wonderful book the art history of California and the nation is graced with further light Dr Kevin Starr State Librarian of California The authors of these essays illuminate a diverse and compelling history one in which what happened at the geographic edges sheds new light on the European points of origin A lively and valuable contribution not just to regional history but to the making and transmission of modernism Whitney Chadwick Professor of Art History San Francisco State University A welcome and overdue evaluation of the distinctive history of modernism in California these essays sensitively explore a cultural terrain at once familiar and strange surveying memorable achievements from painting to photography to architecture and film The authors provocatively suggest the centrality of edges wherever they are found to the national tale and demonstrate it through significant developments on our western margin A must for any serious student of American art and culture Charles C Eldredge The University of Kansas An engrossing examination of modernist practices in California before the Abstract Expressionists and beatniks came to town It includes art scenes peopled by Mexican muralists European artists in exile third generation Californians idealist photographers and immigrant artisans Wanda Corn Professor of Art History Stanford University These fascinating essays do much more than fill a major gap in our understanding of American regionalism Their scope is superb because of the inclusive range of their definition of art the varied ethnicities of the artists discussed and the distinctive impact of environment light and culture on California art A dazzling treasure as pleasing to the eye as it is to the mind

Mexican Los Angeles Stephanie Lewthwaite,2022-08-23 Beginning near the end of the nineteenth century a generation of reformers set their sights on the growing Mexican community in Los Angeles Experimenting with a variety of policies on health housing education and labor these reformers settlement workers educationalists Americanizers government officials and employers attempted to transform the Mexican community with a variety of distinct and often competing agendas In Race Place and Reform in Mexican Los Angeles Stephanie Lewthwaite presents evidence from a myriad of sources that these varied agendas of reform consistently supported the creation of racial ethnic and cultural differences across Los Angeles Reformers simultaneously promoted acculturation and racialization creating a landscape of difference that significantly shaped the place and status of Mexican immigrants and Mexican Americans from the Progressive era through the New Deal The book journeys across the urban suburban and rural spaces of Greater Los Angeles as it moves through time and examines the rural urban migration of Mexicans on both a local and a transnational scale Part 1 traverses the world of Progressive reform in urban Los Angeles exploring the link between the region's territorial and industrial expansion early campaigns for social and housing reform and the emergence of a first generation Mexican immigrant population Part 2 documents the shift from official Americanization and assimilation toward nativism and exclusion Here Lewthwaite examines competing cultures of reform and the challenges to assimilation from Mexican nationalists and American nativists Part 3 analyzes reform during the New Deal which spawned the active resistance of second generation Mexican Americans Race Place and Reform in Mexican Los Angeles achieves a full broad and nuanced account of the various and often contradictory efforts to reform the Mexican population of Los Angeles With a transnational approach grounded in historical context this book will appeal to students of history cultural studies and literary studies Dead Men's Propaganda Terhi

Rantanen, 2024-05-07 In Dead Men's Propaganda Ideology and Utopia in Comparative Communications Studies Terhi Rantanen investigates the shaping of early comparative communications research between the 1920s and 1950s notably the work of academics and men of practice in the United States Often neglected this intellectual thread is highly relevant to understanding the 21st century's challenges of war and rival streams of propaganda Borrowing her conceptual lenses from Karl Mannheim and Robert Merton Rantanen draws on detailed archival research and case studies to analyse the extent and importance of work outside and inside the academy illuminating the work of pioneers in the field Some of these were well known academics such as Harold Lasswell and the authors of the seminal book Four Theories of the Press Others operated in the world of news agencies such as Associated Press's Kent Cooper or were marginalised as migr scholars notably Paul Kecskemeti and Nathan Leites Her study shows how comparative communications from its very beginning can be understood as governed by the Mannheimian concepts of ideology and utopia and the power play between them The close relationship between these two concepts resulted in a bias in knowledge production contributed to dominant narratives of generational conflicts and to the demarcation of Insiders and Outsiders By focusing on a generation at the forefront of comparative communications at this pivotal time in the 20th century this book challenges orthodoxies in the intellectual histories of communication studies Cora Wilson Stewart Willie Nelms, 1997-08-15 In 1911 Cora Wilson Stewart founded the Moonlight Schools in Rowan County Kentucky an innovative night program that taught illiterate adults to read Hoping that 150 people would attend the first classes Stewart was amazed that over 1 200 men and women enrolled She quickly developed reading material for these men and women that appealed to them instead of the children's texts that most educators were using with adults With the success of the Moonlight Schools Stewart moved forward in her crusade against illiteracy she quickly became the most prominent advocate for the cause on both the national and international scene Stewart took the fight against illiteracy at a time when it was an accepted part of American life She shocked the nation when she pointed out that 25 percent of the men who signed up for the draft in 1917 could neither read nor write From her beginnings in the mountains of Kentucky she went on to chair the Illiteracy Section of the World Conference of Education Associations five times she founded the National Illiteracy Crusade in 1926 She even received one vote for president at the 1920

Democratic convention Her crusade came despite the fact she was a victim of domestic abuse who suffered through three failed marriages Her life reflects the challenges faced by female reformers in the early part of the 20th century The Soul of Pleasure David Monod,2016-04-22 Show business is today so essential to American culture it s hard to imagine a time when it was marginal But as David Monod demonstrates the appetite for amusements outside the home was not natural it developed slowly over the course of the nineteenth century The Soul of Pleasure offers a new interpretation of how the taste for entertainment was cultivated Monod focuses on the shifting connection between the people who built successful popular entertainments and the public who consumed them Show people discovered that they had to adapt entertainment to the moral outlook of Americans which they did by appealing to sentiment The Soul of Pleasure explores several controversial forms of popular culture minstrel acts burlesques and saloon variety shows and places them in the context of changing values and perceptions Far from challenging respectability Monod argues that entertainments reflected and transformed the audience s ideals In the mid nineteenth century sentimentality not only infused performance styles and the content of shows but also altered the expectations of the theatergoing public Sentimental entertainment depended on sensational effects that produced surprise horror and even gales of laughter After the Civil War the sensational charge became more important than the sentimental bond and new forms of entertainment gained in popularity and provided the foundations for vaudeville America s first mass entertainment Ultimately it was American entertainment s variety that would provide the true soul of pleasure Era of Experimentation Daniel Peart,2014-05-05 In Era of Experimentation Daniel Peart challenges the pervasive assumption that the present day political system organized around two competing parties represents the logical fulfillment of participatory democracy Recent accounts of the rise of American democracy between the Revolution and the Civil War applaud political parties for opening up public life to mass participation and making government responsive to the people Yet this celebratory narrative tells only half of the story By exploring American political practices during the early 1820s a period of particular flux in the young republic Peart argues that while parties could serve as vehicles for mass participation they could also be employed to channel control and even curb it Far from equating democracy with the party system Americans freely experimented with alternative forms of political organization and resisted efforts to confine their public presence to the polling place Era of Experimentation demonstrates the sheer variety of political practices that made up what subsequent scholars have labeled democracy in the early United States Peart also highlights some overlooked consequences of the nationalization of competitive two party politics during the antebellum period particularly with regard to the closing of alternative avenues for popular participation

Beyond Objecthood James Voorhies, 2017-02-24 The rise of the exhibition as critical form and artistic medium from Robert Smithson's antimodernist non sites in 1968 to today's institutional gravitation toward the participatory In 1968 Robert Smithson reacted to Michael Fried's influential essay Art and Objecthood with a series of works called non sites While Fried described the spectator's connection with a work of art as a momentary visual engagement Smithson's non sites asked spectators to do something more to take time looking walking seeing reading and thinking about the combination of objects images and texts installed in a gallery In Beyond Objecthood James Voorhies traces a genealogy of spectatorship through the rise of the exhibition as a critical form and artistic medium Artists like Smithson Group Material and Michael Asher sought to reconfigure and expand the exhibition and the museum into something more active open and democratic by inviting spectators into new and unexpected encounters with works of art and institutions This practice was sharply critical of the ingrained characteristics long associated with art institutions and conventional exhibition making and yet Voorhies finds over time the critique has been diluted by efforts of the very institutions that now gravitate to the participatory Beyond Objecthood focuses on innovative figures artworks and institutions that pioneered the exhibition as a critical form tracing its evolution through the activities of curator Harald Szeemann relational art and New Institutionalism Voorhies examines recent artistic and curatorial work by Liam Gillick Thomas

Hirschhorn Carsten H ller Maria Lind Apolonija u ter i and others at such institutions as Documenta e flux Manifesta and Office for Contemporary Art Norway and he considers the continued potential of the exhibition as a critical form in a time when the differences between art and entertainment increasingly blur
