Foreign Direct Investment in the United States: Benefits, Suspensions, and Risks with Special Attention to FDI from China Theodore H. Moran, Lindsay Oldenski, 2013-09-01 Americans have long been ambivalent toward foreign direct investment in the United States Foreign multinational corporations may be a source of capital technology and jobs But what are the implications for US workers firms communities and consumers as the United States remains the most popular destination for foreign multinational investment Theodore H Moran and Lindsay Oldenski find that foreign multinational firms that invest in the United States are alongside

US headquartered American multinationals the most productive and highest paying segment of the US economy These firms conduct more research and development provide more value added to US domestic inputs and export more goods and services than other firms in the US economy The superior technology and management techniques they employ spill over horizontally and vertically to improve the performance of local firms and workers As the United States wants not only to expand employment but also create well paying jobs that reverse the falling earnings that many US workers and middle class families have suffered in recent decades it is more important than ever to enhance the United States as a destination for multinational investors

Foreign Investment and National Security: Economic Considerations, 2008 In particular some Members argue that greater consideration must be given to the long term impact of foreign direct investment on the structure and the industrial capacity of the economy and on the ability of the economy to meet the needs of U S defense and security interests In particular these concerns have centered around the impact of such investments on the structure and the industrial capacity of the economy and on the ability of the economy to meet the needs of U S defense and security interests including a terrorist attack According to the Department of Commerce investment spending through 2008 increased as a result the acquisition of U S firms and a substantial strengthening the net equity position of foreign owned firms 4 The majority of investments were in the manufacturing sector investments also rose in the information sector and in the finance sector In turn the OECD concluded that the generality of the restrictions is due to four issues 1 the nature of the security threats may affect perceived threats and vulnerabilities 2 the assessment of the threats may be affected by the nationality of the foreign investor 3 some perceived threats may be resolved easily through mitigation efforts while others may not and 4 not all countries have The act established that the Strategic Materials Protection Board would be composed of representatives from the Secretary of Defense the Under Secretary of Defense for Acquisition Technology and Logistics the Under Secretary of Defense for Intelligence the Secretary of the Army the Secretary of the Navy and the Secretary of the Air Force

Jackson, 2008 The United States is the largest foreign direct investor in the world and also the largest recipient of foreign direct investment This dual role means that globalization or the spread of economic activity by firms across national borders has become a prominent feature of the U S economy and that through direct investment the U S economy has become highly enmeshed with the broader global economy This also means that the United States has important economic political and social interests at stake in the development of international policies regarding direct investment With some exceptions for national security the United States has established domestic policies that treat foreign investors no less favorably than U S firms This report assesses recent international developments as the leaders from a number of nations work to reach a consensus on an informal set of best practices regarding national restrictions on foreign investment for national security purposes This report also provides one possible approach for assessing the costs and benefits involved in using national policies to direct or to restrict foreign direct investment for national security reasons Within the United States there is no consensus yet among Members of Congress or between the Congress and the Administration over a working set of parameters that establishes a functional definition of the national economic security implications of foreign direct investment In part this issue reflects differing assessments of the economic impact of foreign investment on the U S economy and differing political and
