Abstract: This study examines the impact of the 2008 financial crisis on the U.S. economy. The study uses a combination of qualitative and quantitative methods to analyze the effects of the crisis on the economy, including the impact on the housing market, the financial system, and the overall economy. The study finds that the crisis had a significant negative impact on the U.S. economy, leading to a recession and a decline in the housing market. The study also finds that the crisis had a significant impact on the financial system, leading to a loss of confidence in the system and a decline in the value of financial assets. The study concludes that the crisis had a significant negative impact on the U.S. economy and the financial system, and that the impact is likely to be long-lasting.
