Musings on Indian Writing in English: Fiction N. Sharda Iyer, 2003 Anandamath: Dawn Over India Bankim Chandra Chattopadhyay, 2020-09-28 It was hot at Padachina even for a summer day In this village were many houses but not a soul could be seen anywhere The bazaar was full of shops and the lanes were lined with houses built either of brick or of mud Every house was quiet The shops were closed and no one knew where the shopkeepers had gone Even the street beggars were absent The weavers wove no more The merchants had no business Philanthropic persons had nothing to give Teachers closed their schools Things had come to such a pass that children were even afraid to cry The streets were empty There were no bathers in the river There were no human beings about the houses no birds in the trees no cattle in the pastures Jackals and dogs morosely prowled in the graveyards and in the cremation grounds One great house stood in this village Its colossal pillars could be seen from a distance But its doors were closed so tight that it was almost impossible for even a breath of air to enter Within the house a man and his wife sat deeply absorbed in thought Mahendra Singh and his wife were face to face with famine The year before the harvests had been below normal So rice was expensive this year and people began to suffer Then during the rainy season it rained plentifully The villagers at first looked upon this as a special mercy of God Cowherds sang in joy and the wives of the peasants began to pester their husbands for silver ornaments All of a sudden God frowned again Not a drop of rain fell during the remaining months of the season The rice fields dried into heaps of straw Here and there a few fields yielded poor crops but government agents bought these up for the army So people began to starve again At first they lived on one meal a day Soon even that became scarce and they began to go without any food at all The crop was too scanty but the government revenue collector sought to advance his personal prestige by increasing the land revenue by ten per cent And in dire misery Bengal shed bitter tears Beggars increased in such numbers that charity soon became the most difficult thing to practise Then disease began to spread Farmers sold their cattle and their ploughs and ate up the seed grain Then they sold their homes and farms For lack of food they soon took to eating leaves of trees then grass and when the grass was gone they ate weeds People of certain castes began to eat cats dogs and rats dismantled the last British colonial structures of racial segregation and put in place an official philosophy of nonracial nationalism Yet today more than five decades after independence race is still a prominent and publicly contested subject in Dar es Salaam What makes this issue so dizzyingly elusive for government bureaucrats and ordinary people alike is East Africa's location on the Indian Ocean a historic crossroads of diverse peoples possessing varied ideas about how to reconcile human difference social belonging and place of origin Based on a range of archival oral and newspaper sources from Tanzania and India this book explores the history of cross cultural encounters that shaped regional ideas of diaspora and nationhood from the earliest days of colonial Tanganyika when Indian settlement began to expand dramatically to present day Tanzania a nation always under construction The book focuses primarily on two prominent city spaces schools and cinemas the one a site of education the other a site of leisure one typically a programmatic entity of government the other usually a bastion of commercial enterprise Nonetheless the forces shaping schools and cinemas as they developed into busy centers of urban social interaction were surprisingly similar the state community organizations nationalist movements economic change and the transnational winds of Indian Ocean culture and capital Whether in the form of institutional apparatuses like networks of Indian teacher importation and curricula adoption or through the market predominance of the Indian film industry schools and cinemas in East Africa historically were influenced by actions and ideas from around the Indian Ocean Diaspora and Nation in the Indian Ocean argues that an Indian Ocean wide perspective enables an examination of the transnational production of ideas about race against a backdrop of changing relationships and claims of belonging as new notions of nationhood and diaspora emerged It bridges an academic divide because historians often either focus on the Indian diaspora in isolation or write it out of the story of African nation building Further in contrast to the swell of publications on global Indian or South Asian diasporas that highlight longings for and contacts with the homeland the book also demonstrates that much of the creative production of diasporic Indian identities formed in East Africa was a result of local albeit cosmopolitan encounters across cities like Dar es Salaam
