Writing For Change A Community Reader:

Writing for Change Ann Watters, Marjorie Ford, 1994-09 WRITING FOR CHANGE A COMMUNITY READER is a thematic reader designed for the first or second course in Freshmen Composition It provides a rich selection of readings that address issues concerning family community work education health diversity and the environment The innovative approach of WRITING FOR CHANGE is to enable students to move from private reflection to public statement and to an active role in changing their community on issues of public concern that bind us together as a community This strong contemporary reader can be used in any composition course and can also be used with the companion handbook A GUIDE FOR CHANGE to develop a writing course that focuses on community based writing Writing the Community Linda Adler-Kassner, Robert Crooks, Ann Watters, 2023-07-03 The first volume in AAHE and Campus Compact's series on service learning in the disciplines the book discusses the microrevolution in college level Composition through service learning The essays in this volume show why service learning and communication are a natural pairing and give a background on the relationship between service learning and communication with maps to suggest where it should go in the future Experiencing Citizenship Richard M. Battistoni, William E. Hudson, 2023-07-03 This practical guide is intended for faculty and service learning directors combining the how to information and rigorous intellectual framework that teachers seek What distinguishes this volume is that the contributors are writing for their peers They discuss how service learning can be implemented within political science and what this discipline contributes to the pedagogy of service learning The book offers both theoretical background and practical pedagogical chapters which describe the design implementation and outcomes of political science service learning programs as well as annotated bibliographies program descriptions and course syllabi Nonacademic Writing Ann Hill Duin, Craig J. Hansen, 1996 First Published in 1995 Routledge is an imprint of Taylor Francis an informa company

Rhetorical Education In America Cheryl Jean Glenn, 2009-03-15 A timely collection of essays by prominent scholars in the field on the past present and future of rhetoric instruction From Isocrates and Aristotle to the present rhetorical education has consistently been regarded as the linchpin of a participatory democracy a tool to foster civic action and social responsibility Yet questions of who should receive rhetorical education in what form and for what purpose continue to vex teachers and scholars The essays in this volume converge to explore the purposes problems and possibilities of rhetorical education in America on both the undergraduate and graduate levels and inside and outside the academy William Denman examines the ancient model of the citizen orator and its value to democratic life Thomas Miller argues that English departments have embraced a literary research paradigm and sacrificed the teaching of rhetorical skills for public participation Susan Kates explores how rhetoric is taught at nontraditional institutions such as Berea College in Kentucky where Appalachian dialect is espoused Nan Johnson looks outside the academy at the parlor movement among women in antebellum America Michael Halloran examines the rhetorical education provided by historical landmarks where visitors are encouraged to share a common public discourse Laura Gurak presents the challenges posed to traditional notions of literacy by the computer the promises and dangers of internet technology and the necessity of a critical cyber literacy for future rhetorical curricula Collectively the essays coalesce around timely political and cross disciplinary issues Rhetorical Education in America serves to orient scholars and teachers in rhetoric regardless of their disciplinary home and help to set an agenda for future classroom practice and curriculum design

Handbook of Writing Research , Teaching/writing in the Late Age of Print Jeffrey R. Galin,Carol Peterson Haviland,J. Paul Johnson,2003 Although several anthologies have collected articles on issues confronting composition studies no other text looks at student writing as does Teaching Writing in the Late Age of Print No other volume has asked compositionists to use student writing to reflect on their teaching practices No other volume has provided the rich breadth of response that reflects the current state of composition in the United States And no other volume has defined its primary task as portraying the diversity of the field through teaching practices as represented in student writing Most important of all no other volume has provided all course materials and supplemental documentation online as an integral part of such a project There is a keyword reference table that allows readers to read chapters based on key terms in the field like collaboration Each chapter begins with an abstract for easy reference The companion website for this book includes a searchable database of all the chapter abstracts assignments excerpts from all contributions extended course materials that help contextualize the printed chapters and an online forum for teachers and researchers to meet and discuss their research interests
