Introduction to APA

In APA style, you acknowledge your outside sources in two ways:

In-Text Citations

When you paraphrase or quote information that came from an outside source, you must tell your reader where the information came from. To do this, you provide brief information about the source, usually the author and publication year. If you use a direct quotation, you should also include the page number (see p. 3 for details).

Example:

While the opening of a large research university such as UC Merced leads to a growth in service industry jobs to meet the increased demands of students and faculty of the university, job growth in manufacturing is delayed (Lee, 2019).

Reference List

You also need to provide a list of all of the sources that you cited in your paper. Here, you will give additional information about each source you cited. (See p. 4 for details).

Example:

Lee, J. (2019). The local economic impact of a large research university: Evidence from UC Merced. Economic Inquiry, 57(1), 316–332.
