Writing History Crime:

Writing the History of Crime Paul Knepper, 2015-12-17 Writing the History of Crime investigates the development of historical writing on the subject of crime and its wider place in social and cultural history. It examines long standing and emerging traditions in history writing with separate chapters on legal and scientific approaches as well as on urban Marxist gender and empire history. Each chapter then explores these historical approaches in relation to crime paying particular attention to the relationship between theory and the interpretation of evidence. Rather than a timeline for the historical appearance of ideas about crime or a catalogue of the range of topics that comprise the subject matter Writing the History of Crime reveals the ideas behind crime as a subject of historical investigation. It looks at how these ideas generate questions that may be asked about the past and the way in which these questions are answered. This is a crucial analysis for anyone interested in the history of crime the historiography of social history or the art of history writing more broadly. Writing

History in International Criminal Trials Richard Ashby Wilson, 2011-03-07 Why do international criminal tribunals write histories of the origins and causes of armed conflicts? Richard Ashby Wilson conducted research with judges prosecutors defense attorneys and expert witnesses in three international criminal tribunals to understand how law and history are combined in the courtroom. Historical testimony is now an integral part of international trials with prosecutors and defense teams using background testimony to pursue decidedly legal objectives. In the Slobodan Milošević trial the prosecution sought to demonstrate special intent to commit genocide by reference to a long standing animus nurtured within a nationalist mindset. For their part the defense called historical witnesses to undermine charges of superior responsibility and to mitigate the sentence by representing crimes as reprisals. Although legal ways of knowing are distinct from those of history the two are effectively combined in international trials in a way that challenges us to rethink the relationship between law and history.

Writing Academic Texts Differently Nina Lykke, 2014-06-27 This edited volume combines cutting edge research on feminist and intersectional writing methodologies with explorations of links between academic and creative writing practices. Contributors discuss what it means for academic writing processes to explore intersectionality in between spaces between monolithic identity markers and power differentials such as gender race ethnicity class sexuality and nationality. How does such a frame change academic writing? How does it make it pertinent to explore new synergies between academic and creative writing? In answer to these questions the book offers theories methodologies political and ethical considerations as well as reflections on writing strategies. Suggestions for writing exercises developed against the background of the contributors' individual and joint teaching practices will inspire readers to engage in alternative writing practices themselves.
