Katherine Mansfield and Russia Galya Diment, 2018-11-30 Reveals diverse notions of distributed cognition in the early Greek and Roman worlds Russomania Rebecca Beasley, 2020-03-31 Russomania Russian Culture and the Creation of British Modernism provides a new account of modernist literature's emergence in Britain British writers played a central role in the dissemination of Russian literature and culture during the early twentieth century and their writing was transformed by the encounter. This study restores the thick history of that moment by analyzing networks of dissemination and reception to recover the role of neglected as well as canonical figures and institutions as well as individuals. The dominant account of British modernism privileges a Francophile genealogy but the turn of the century debate about the future of British writing was a triangular debate a debate not only between French and English models but between French English and Russian models. Francophile modernists associated Russian literature especially the Tolstoyan novel with an uncritical immersion in life at the expense of a mastery of style and while individual works might be admired Russian literature as a whole was represented as a dangerous model for British writing. This supposed danger was closely bound up with the politics of the period and this book investigates how Russian culture was deployed in the close relationships between writers editors and politicians who made up the early twentieth century intellectual class the British intelligentsia. Russomania argues that the most significant impact of Russian culture is not to be found in stylistic borrowings between canonical authors but in the shaping of the major intellectual questions of the period the relation between language and action writer and audience and the work of art and lived experience. The resulting account brings an occluded genealogy of early modernism to the fore with a different arrangement of protagonists different critical values and stronger lines of connection to the realist experiments of the Victorian past and the anti formalism and revived romanticism of the 1930s and 1940s future.

Katherine Mansfield and Periodical Culture Mourant Chris Mourant, 2019-04-10 Explores Katherine Mansfield's engagement in the periodical culture of the early twentieth century. This book considers Mansfield's ambivalent position as a colonial woman writer by examining her contributions to the political weekly The New Age the avant garde little magazine Rhythm and the literary journal The Athenaeum. Contextualising Mansfield's work against the editorial strategies and professional cultures of each periodical the book deepens and complicates older critical assumptions about the trajectory of Mansfield's development as a writer

Virginia Woolf, Europe, and Peace Ariane Mildenberg, Patricia Novillo-Corvalán, 2020-06-13

Virginia Woolf's Europe and Peace Transnational Circulations enlarges our understanding of Virginia Woolf's pacifist ideology and aesthetic response to the World Wars by re-examining her writings and cultural contexts transnationally and comparatively through the complex interplay between modernism politics and aesthetics. The transnational paradigm that undergirds this collection revolves around the idea of transnational cultural communities of writers, artists, and musicians worldwide who were intellectually involved in the war effort through the forging of pacifist cultural networks that arose as a form of resistance to war, militarism, and the rise of fascism. The book also offers philosophical approaches to notions of transnational pacifism, anti-war ethics, and decolonization, examining how Woolf's prose undermines center edge or self/other bifurcations. Breathing new life into Woolf's anti-war writings through a transnational lens and presenting us with the voices and perspectives of a range of significant scholars, the chapters in this volume engage with mobile and circulatory pacifisms, calling attention to the intersections of modernist inquiries across the arts, art, music, literature, and performance, and transnational critical spaces. Asia, Europe, and the Americas to show how the convergence of different cultural and linguistic horizons can significantly expand and enrich our understanding of Woolf's modernist legacy.

Virginia Woolf's Portraits of Russian Writers Darya Protopopova, 2019-02-05

Virginia Woolf always stayed ahead of her time. Championing gender equality when women could not vote, publishing authors from Pakistan, France, Austria, and other parts of the world while nationalism in Britain was on the rise, and befriending outcasts and social pariahs. As such, what could have possibly interested her in the works of nineteenth century Russian writers, austere and at times misogynistic thinkers preoccupied with peasants, priests, and paroxysms of the soul? This study explains the chronological and cultural paradox of how classic Russian fiction became crucial to Woolf's vision of British modernism. We follow Woolf as she begins to learn Russian, invents a character for a story by Dostoevsky, ponders over Sophia Tolstoy's suicide note, and proclaims Chekhov a truly modern writer. The book also examines British modernists' fascination with Russian art, looking at parallels between Roger Fry's articles on Russian Post-Impressionists and Woolf's essays on Chekhov, Dostoevsky, Tolstoy, and Turgenev.

The book also includes a substantial annotated bibliography of key works of Mansfield scholarship from the last 30 years. Vladimir Nabokov as an Author-Translator Julie Loison-Charles, 2022-11-17. Exploring the deeply translational and transnational nature of the writings of Vladimir Nabokov, this book argues that all his work is unified by the permanent presence of three cultures and languages: Russian, English and French. In particular, Julie Loison-Charles focusses on Nabokov's dual nature as both an author and a translator and the ways in which translation permeates his fictional writing from his very first Russian works to his last novels in English. Although self-translation has received a lot of attention in Nabokov criticism, this book considers his work as an author-translator, drawing particular attention to his often underappreciated and underestimated but no less crucial third language, French. Looking at Nabokov's encounters with pseudotranslation, Julie Loison-Charles demonstrates the influence this had on his practice as both a translator and a writer, arguing that this experience was crucial to his ability to create bridges between the literary traditions of Europe, Russia and America. The book also triangulates his practice and theory of translation for Onegin with those of Chateaubriand and Venuti to illuminate Nabokov's transnational vision of literature and his ethics of translation, before presenting a robust case for reconsidering his collaborative translations in French as mediated self-translations. Translocated Modernisms Emily Ballantyne, Marta Dvořák, Dean Irvine, 2016-10-04. Translocated Modernisms is a collection of ten chapters partitioned into sections and framed by an introduction by the editors and a coda by Kit Dobson, which is interested in those who thronged to the vibrant streets, cafés and salons of Montparnasse, those who stayed such as Brion Gysin and Mavis Gallant, those who returned home such as Morley Callaghan, John Glassco, David Silverberg and Sheila Watson, and those who galvanized local cultural practices by appropriating and translating them from elsewhere. While for some Paris becomes a permanent home, for others it is simply a temporary excursion which can last for months or for many years. The collection opens up the Lost Generation to include multiple generations and broadens its ambit to encompass modernist writers placed under erasure by dominant narratives of Anglo American modernism Instead of limiting the category to a single group based on a collective identity this volume considers lost generations as a particular type of modernist identity attributable to multiple and disparate collectivities These lost generations include those excluded from canonical narrativizations of expatriate modernisms among which we spy the glimmer of other modernists living in the shadows of luminaries long recognized in the Anglo American tradition

Modernist Lives Claire Battershill, 2018-04-05 Focusing on the biographies and autobiographies published by Leonard and Virginia Woolf's Hogarth Press from 1917-1946 Claire Battershill shows the importance of publishing history in understanding modernist literary work and culture Modernist Lives draws on archival material from the Hogarth Press Business Archive and first editions from the Virginia Woolf Collection at the E J Pratt Library to show how the Woolfs literary theories were expressed in all aspects of their publishing their marketing strategies editorial practice and the literary composition of their acquisitions Featuring the works of figures such as Christopher Isherwood Henry Green Viola Tree Vita Sackville West and the Woolf's themselves Battershill illuminates the history of Hogarth books from their composition to their reception by readers and critics

Disability in Translation Someshwar Sati, G.J.V. Prasad, 2019-07-08 This volume explores how disability is seen written about read and understood through literature and translation Foregrounding the asymmetrical world of power relations it delves into the act of translation to exhibit how disability is constructed and deployed in language and culture The essays in the volume reflect and theorise on experiences of translating various Indian language stories into English which have disability as their subject They focus on recovering and empowering marginal voices as well as on the mechanics of translating idioms of disability Furthermore the book goes on to engage the reader to demonstrate how disability and the space it occupies in our lives can be reinforced or deconstructed in translation A major intervention in translation and disability studies this volume will be of great interest to scholars and researchers of literature culture and sociology

Cultures and Literatures in Dialogue Elena Bollinger, 2022-12-30 This book addresses the narrative construction of Russian cultural memory in the work of Julian Barnes It investigates how Barnes's texts tend to display a memory process as a transcultural mode of the creation of English and Russian national identities Examining a need to revisit Russian canonical works the detailed discursive analysis of the selected English texts exposes an intertextual remembering by duplication thus contributing to the prevention of forgetting through the recuperation of still misrecollected cultural meanings By creatively incorporating Russian intertextual elements into his work as a novelist the author seems to insist on sweeping across and beyond national boundaries revealing how frail the invention of tradition is when leading to the illusion of a solid collective memory and its political legitimization The book considers not only a constructive dialogue between Barnes's fiction and Russian classical literature but also this writer's interpretative mostly imaginative integration of Russian literature and culture into his work as a novelist Exploring the double meaning of a literary metaphor as a mnemonic image of memory and a product of imagination it offers a comprehensive analysis of Barnes's texts which play with intertextuality as an efficient tool of displacement of official memory providing a deeper understanding of historical and cultural processes related to the constantly moving architecture of transcultural memory
