Voyage Of The Sable Venus And Other Poems:

Voyage of the Sable Venus Robin Coste Lewis, 2015 Robin Coste Lewis's electrifying collection is a triptych that begins and ends with lyric poems meditating on the roles desire and race play in the construction of the self. In the center of the collection is the title poem Voyage of the Sable Venus, an amazing narrative made up entirely of titles of artworks from ancient times to the present, titles that feature or in some way comment on the black female figure in Western art. Bracketed by Lewis's own autobiographical poems, Voyage is a tender and shocking meditation on the fragmentary mysteries of stereotype, juxtaposing our names for things with what we actually see and know. A new understanding of biography and the self, this collection questions just where historically do ideas about the black female figure truly begin, five hundred years ago, five thousand or even longer. And what role did art play in this ancient, often heinous story? Here we meet a poet who adores her culture and the beauty to be found within it. Yet she is also a cultural critic, alert to the nuances of race and desire, how they define us all, including her own, sometimes painful history. Lewis's book is a thrilling aesthetic anthem to the complexity of race, a full embrace of its pleasure and horror in equal parts. Women Writing Across Cultures Pelagia

Goulimari, 2018-10-22 This collection brings together an international, multicultural, multilingual, and multidisciplinary community of scholars and practitioners in different media, seeking to question and re-theorize the contested terms of our title: woman writing, women's writing, and across Culture. It is translated into an open series of interconnected terms and questions: How might one write across national cultures or across a national and a minority culture or across disciplines, genres, and media or across synchronic discourses that are unequal in power or across present and past discourses or present and future discourses? The collection explores and develops recent feminist, queer, and transgender theory and criticism, and also aesthetic practice. Writing across assumes a number of orientations: posthumanist, transtemporal, transnationalist, writing across discourses, disciplines, media, genres, genders, writing across pronouns, he, she, they, writing across literature, non-literary texts, and life. This book was originally published as a special issue of Angelaki: Journal of the Theoretical Humanities. The Trembling Hand Mathelinda Nabugodi, 2025-07-29 A provocative, revelatory history of British Romanticism that examines the impact of the transatlantic slave economy on the lives and times of some of our most beloved poets, with urgent lessons for today. A scrap of Coleridge's handwriting. The sugar that Wordsworth stirred into his teacup. A bracelet made of Mary Shelley's hair. Percy Shelley's gilded baby rattle. The death mask preserving Keats's calm face. Byron's silk-lined leather boot. Who would have known there could be vast worlds contained in these items? In a completely new interpretation of the Romantics and their context, Whiting Award-winning scholar and literary sleuth Mathelinda Nabugodi uses these items to frame her interrogation of the poets, leading us on an expansive journey through time and memory, situating us in the depth of their world and her own. Freedom, liberty, autonomy are the period's favorite words. Nabugodi writes: Romantic poets sought truth in the depth of their souls and in the mind's unbounded regions. Ideals of free speech and human rights were being forged And yet the period was defined by a relentless commitment to the displacement and stolen labor of millions Romanticism she argues can no longer be discussed without the racial violence with which it was complicit Still rather than using this idea to rehash Black pain and subjugation she mines the archives for instances of resistance beauty and joy Nabugodi moves effortlessly between the past and present She takes us into the physical archives and with startling clarity unpacks her relationships with them what they are and should be who built them how they are entwined with an industry that was the antithesis of freedom and how she feels holding the materials needed to write this book as a someone whose ancestry is largely absent from their ledgers The Trembling Hand presents a dazzling new way of reading the past This transfixing evocative book reframes not only the lives of the legendary Romantics but also their poetry and the very era in which they lived It is a reckoning with art archives and academia bound to echo through the conversation for a long time to come

Recently a number of cutting edge African American artists have investigated issues of race and American identity in their work relying on the use of historical source material and the subversion of archaic media This scrutiny of little known yet uncannily familiar racialized imagery by contemporary artists has created a renewed interest in the politics of nineteenth century American art and the role of race in the visual discourse Portraits of a People looks critically at images made of and by African Americans extending back to the late 1700s when a portrait of African born poet Phillis Wheatley was drawn by her friend the slave Scipio Moorhead From the American Revolution until the Civil War and on into the Gilded Age American artists created dynamic images of black sitters In their effort to create enduring symbols of self possessed identity many of these portraits provide a window into cultural stereotypes and practices For example while some of these pictures were undoubtedly of distinct named individuals many are now known by titles that reference only generalized types such as Joshua Johnston s painting Portrait of a Man c 1805 10 or the silhouette inscribed Mr Shaw s blackman cut around 1802 by the manumitted slave Moses Williams By the middle of the nineteenth century photography began to offer black sitters an affordable and accessible way to fashion an individual identity and sometimes obtain financial support as in the case of the numerous cartes de visites produced during the 1860s and 70s that bear the image of the feminist activist Sojourner Truth above the text I Sell the Shadow to Support the Substance Portraits of a People features colour reproductions of over 100 important portraits in various media ranging from paintings photographs and silhouettes to book frontispieces and popular prints

A genre bending exploration of poetry photography and human migration another revelatory visual expedition from the National Book Award winning poet who changed the way we see art the museum and the Black female figure Winner of the PEN Voelcker Award for Poetry Lewis pushes the limits of language and image composing lines alongside a cache of hundreds of photographs found under her late grandmother s bed only days before the house was slated to be razed Kevin Young The New Yorker Twenty five years ago after her maternal grandmother s death Robin Coste Lewis discovered a stunning collection of photographs in an old suitcase under her bed filled with everything from sepia tintypes to Technicolor Polaroids Lewis s family had survived one of the largest migrations in human history when six million Americans fled the South attempting to escape from white supremacy and white terrorism But these photographs of daily twentieth century Black life revealed a concealed interior history The poetry Lewis joins to these vivid images stands forth as an inspiring alternative to the usual ways we frame the old stories of race and migration placing them within a much vaster span of time and history In what she calls a film for the hands and an origin myth for the future Lewis reverses our expectations of both poetry and photography Black pages black space black time the Big Black Bang From glamorous outings to graduations birth announcements baseball leagues and back porch delight Lewis creates a lyrical documentary about Black intimacy Instead of colonial nostalgia she offers us an exalted Black privacy What emerges is a dynamic reframing of what it means to be human and alive with Blackness at its center I am trying to make the gods happy she writes amid these portraits of her ancestors I am trying to make the dead clap and shout

Archive of Desire Robin Coste Lewis, 2025-10-07 The National Book Award PEN Voelcker Award and NAACP Image Award winner returns with another inventive and boundary breaking book a sensual journey ignited in the archives of iconic queer Alexandrian poet C P Cavafy In her first book Robin Coste Lewis's poems exploded the imagery of the Black female figure from antiquity through the present day Her second book was an expansive hybrid photographic and poetic study of human migration and the human family Now she delivers a poem in four parts which originated as a musical visual and lyrical collaboration with the composer Vijay Iyer cellist Jeffrey Zeigler and visual artist Julie Mehretu with Lewis on the microphone offering a live reading of this sequence Ignited by their encounters with Cavafy's archive in the heart of Athens the multimedia quartet exalted the liminal spaces where desire and diaspora meet where art often asserts itself most forcefully In this volume Lewis brings this performance to life on the page where the poem weaves in and out of Cavafy's bedrooms notebooks and the suppressed erotic excavation underpinning all of his work Lewis converses directly with Mr Cavafy often you reminded us that the only true barbarians are the ones raging in silence inside of our own minds But she also brings equal parts of herself to this study of artistry and sensuality as in the short tender section entitled Cavafy in Compton Closet Anthem Self Portrait at Sixteen 1979 As in all Lewis's works here she reaches across centuries to express what is timeless and not bound by our current moment or our single selves the discipline and glory of art the give and take of love the kiss that lives in the moment and the unfolding journey of being human whose contours become clear only with the passage of time the igniting of memory and the words we find to describe the journey
