

Hearing voices: A spectrum of experience

It is increasingly recognised that voice-hearing events are often and often a continuum or spectrum that includes ordinary verbal thinking, day-dreaming and intrusive thoughts. We all have the capacity for 'hearing voices' and that capacity can be more likely than others to have more intense voices, or to hear them more often.

Did you know?

Only 1% of people have frequent voice-hearing experiences and no mental health problems.

A comparable 1% have a diagnosis of schizophrenia. Around 20% of this group will hear voices.

What is the difference between voice-hearing and my own inner voice?

Little research of our own voice which affects nearly all of us. Most people report that hearing a voice is the absence of any control about how it comes from the self.

The content and thoughts of the voice or voices is experienced as coming from outside or outside the head - some people experience that sound as if they are coming from the outside environment. But many voices are experienced as internal or they seem to be our own voice which is.

What is the experience with a diagnosis of schizophrenia or psychosis	What is the experience with no diagnosis
Can the voice or voices be heard	Can the voice or voices be heard
Can they be controlled	Can they be controlled
Will comments on things or take part in conversations	Will comments on things or take part in conversations
Often difficult to control	Often possible to control
Most experienced aged 18-25 (not average)	Most experienced aged 18-25 (not average)
Need to discuss voices often or stop	Need to discuss a few times or stop all time

Voices in people with no need for psychiatric care are also more likely to be positive and helpful than those experienced by people with psychosis. They benefit greatly support and guidance and often have an important spiritual aspect.
