major issues about the press and politics that continually resurface such as question of press bias and the use and manipulation of media by politicians to accomplish national goals As a comprehensive and engaging introduction to contemporary political communication this volume provides all readers with a historical perspective on American politics and press and offers a unique appreciation of the strengths and virtues of political communication in America Polls, Expectations, and Elections Richard Craig, 2014-11-13 In modern American presidential campaigning scholars and citizens have bemoaned the effects of electronic media on voters Much has been written about the effects of television ads media management perceived bias and other issues yet one element of today's media environment that most Americans would recognize has not been identified in the public mind expectation setting Journalists regularly tell audiences what actions candidates should take on the campaign trail based solely on whether they're leading or trailing in public opinion polls Polls Expectations and Elections TV News Making in U.S. Presidential Campaigns follows the rise and proliferation of this phenomenon through a comprehensive content analysis of transcripts of CBS Evening News broadcasts during presidential election campaigns from 1968-2012 Richard Craig uses numerous examples from these transcripts to illustrate how television news has gone from simply reporting poll data to portraying it as nearly the only motivation for anything candidates do while campaigning He argues that with the combination of heightened coverage of campaigns and the omnipresence of poll data campaign coverage has largely become a day to day series of contests with candidates portrayed as succeeding or failing each day to meet expectations of what the candidate at a given position in the polls should do on the campaign trail Highlighting the change in news media and candidate coverage Polls Expectations and Elections will appeal to scholars of media studies political communication and journalism Political Campaign Communication Robert E. Psychological Bulletin ,2000 Gender, Heteronormativity, and the American Presidency Aidan Smith,2017-10-03 Gender Heteronormativity and the American Presidency places notions of gender at the center of its analysis of presidential campaign communications Over the decades an investment in gendered representations of would be leaders has changed little in spite of the second and third wave feminist movements Modern candidates have worked vigorously to demonstrate compensatory heterosexuality an unquestionable normative identity that seeks to overcome challenges to their masculinity or femininity The book draws from a wide range of archived media material including televised films and advertisements public debates and speeches and candidate autobiographies From the domestic ideals promoted by Eisenhower in the 1950s right through to the explicit and divisive rhetoric associated with the Clinton Trump race in 2016 intersectional content and discourse analysis reveals how each presidential candidate used his or her campaign to position themselves as a defender of traditional gender roles and furthermore how this investment in appropriate gender behaviour was made manifest in both international and domestic policy choices This book represents a significant and timely contribution to the study of political communication While communication during presidential elections is a well established research field Aidan Smith s book is the first to apply a gendered lens over such an extended historical period and across the political spectrum Educating the Consumer of Television John Splaine,Pam Splaine,1992 Guide to helping students in grades 5 9 become critical viewers of television Journal for mental changes ,2000 The Finish Line Martha FitzSimon,1993 Broadcasting & Cable Yearbook ,1994 The QUARTERLY JOURNAL of SPEECH ,1994
