How Petra was Built Shaher Moh'd Ahmad Rababeh, 2005. Until now no study has been made of the construction techniques of the Nabataean freestanding buildings and the rock-cut monuments of Petra, Jordan, built from the 1st century BC to the 2nd century AD. Their technical features were documented by fieldwork and this evidence was then analysed to determine precisely when and why these features appeared or evolved. This leads to explaining how the Nabataeans developed their architecture and what types of construction techniques they used to bring Petra's architecture to its peak. The historical and geographical context for the architecture of Petra is presented with a summary of previous scholarship on the site. The focus moves to the building materials used by the Nabataeans which are found to influence the construction techniques they developed. This is followed by a detailed discussion of quarrying and the rock cut techniques. The procedures for dressing ashlar blocks and the facades of the rock cut monuments are analysed to determine the tools used by the builders as well as the lifting devices necessary for construction of the freestanding buildings. The technical aspects of the construction of walls, columns, floors, the anti seismic and stabilising techniques developed by the Nabataeans are considered. Finally the construction of roofs is examined in detail. The results of the study reveal the sources of the building techniques used at Petra and why they were further developed there.

THREE REVIEWS OF HOW PETRA WAS BUILT

J J Coulton Formerly Reader in Classical Archaeology University of Oxford Using his practical experience as an architect as well as extensive and detailed fieldwork Dr Rababeh has provided an illuminating analysis of Nabataean buildings showing how they drew on and modified previous Levantine and Hellenistic methods to suit local materials and local requirements.

Judith McKenzie author of The Architecture of Petra Other books cover the architectural styles of the monuments of Petra. Shaher er Rababeh's is the first to focus on the subject of how they were built both the rock cut tombs and the freestanding buildings. He methodically presents the results of months of first hand examination of the evidence. Each aspect of building construction is analysed making wide ranging use of recent scholarship on ancient building techniques. Just as the Nabataeans made their desert environment habitable with complex water collection systems they refined local Egyptian Greek and Roman construction techniques to suit the city's rose red sandstone and other available building materials. Rababeh shows the Nabataean construction techniques were just as distinctive in their details as the style of their architecture which they created from classical Alexandrian and Near Eastern elements. He makes interesting discoveries. The stone cut away when the tombs were carved was used to erect the city's freestanding buildings. Rababeh shows how Petra has the earliest extensive examples of timber used to strengthen stone masonry buildings as later seen on the Ka'ba at Mekka.

Ehud Netzer author of Nabataeische Architektur This comprehensive study of the building systems in the Nabataean world is a pioneering work. It deals with all aspects from wall foundations to roof tiles simple constructions and monumental ones freestanding buildings and monuments cut into the rock.

Shaher's new book widens our knowledge of the enchanted world of Nabataean architecture.

Discoveries: Petra Christian Auge, Jean-Marie Dentzer, 2000-05-01 Petra's mysterious beauty and dramatic story have long captivated the imaginations of historians and art lovers. Recent excavations by the archaeologists Jean Marie Dentzer and Christian Auge provide new information about this city unique in history.

BOOK JACKET Crossing Jordan Thomas Evan Levy, P.M. Michele Daviau, Randall W. Younker, 2016-06-16 Jordan is a key area of migration within the Levantine corridor that links the continents of Africa and Asia. Crossing Jordan examines the peoples and cultures that have travelled across Jordan from antiquity to the present. The book offers a critical analysis of recent discoveries and archaeological models in Jordan and highlights the significant contribution of North American archaeologists to the field. Leading archaeologists explore the theory and methodology of archaeology in Jordan in essays which range across prehistory the Bronze Age the Iron Age the Hellenistic and Roman periods Nabatean civilization the Byzantine period and Islamic civilization The volume provides an up to date guide to the archaeological heritage of Jordan being an important resource for scholars and students of Jordan s history as well as citizens non governmental organizations and tourists

Petra and the Nabataeans Gregory A. Crawford,2003-08-11 From an unknown period before the time of Christ to the fifth century A D a civilization existed in the dry deserts of Jordan While many impressive remains of this civilization have been found especially the stone carved tombs and temples of Petra relatively little is actually known of the people we call the Nabataeans Not only have they left no written history except inscriptions few historians actually mention their existence This Bibliography attempts to pull together from widely disparate sources the literature of research on the Nabataeans and especially on Petra their capital While the main focus of the bibliography is the time period of the Nabataeans many articles books and chapters on Petra and its environs are included even if they discuss periods outside this time frame including the Stone Age the Roman period the Islamic era and the Crusades In addition writings on the Edomites the predecessors of the Nabataeans are also included Entries are listed alphabetically by author and then by date Indexes by subject scheme as well as a comprehensive index to the authors and editors round out this useful reference work
