Rethinking the Coordinate-Subordinate Dichotomy Jean-Christophe Verstraete,2011-12-22 This study argues that the domain traditionally covered by coordination and subordination in English can be subdivided into four distinct construction types The constructions are defined on the basis of differences in their interpersonal structure i e the grammatical encoding of speaker attitude and speaker interlocutor interaction It is shown that the four types constitute syntactically semantically and pragmatically coherent categories with differences in interpersonal structure defining and motivating distinct syntactic behaviour distinct pragmatic functions and distinct semantic classes of clause linkage The validity of the analysis is demonstrated in three ways First it is shown that the analysis can make sense of the wide range of apparently conflicting criteria found in the literature on complex sentences which can now be explained as reflections of four different construction types rather than as alternative perspectives on one single contrast between coordination and subordination Second it is shown how the analysis can deal with two specific problems in the more general area of clause combining viz the syntactic basis of the distinction between content epistemic and speech act levels of clause linkage and the distinct discursive functions associated with initial and final position of adverbial clauses Finally it is also shown that the proposed analysis is useful beyond the analysis of English with parallels in a number of cross linguistically recurrent phenomena of clause linkage The book is mainly of interest to linguistics researchers in the areas of syntax semantics and pragmatics as well as to graduate students with a focus on these fields
