Third World Film Making and the West Roy Armes, 1987-07-29 This volume is the first fully comprehensive account of film production in the Third World Although they are usually ignored or marginalized in histories of world cinema Third World countries now produce well over half of the world's films Roy Armes sets out initially to place this huge output in a wider context examining the forces of tradition and colonialism that have shaped the Third World defined as those countries that have emerged from Western control but have not fully developed their economic potential or rejected the capitalist system in favor of some socialist alternative He then considers the paradoxes of social structure and cultural life in the post independence world where even such basic concepts as nation national culture and language are problematic The first experience of cinema for such countries has invariably been that of imported Western films which created the audience and in most cases still dominate the market today Thus Third World film makers have had to assert their identity against formidable outside pressures The later sections of the book look at their output from a number of angles in terms of the stages of overall growth and corresponding stages of cinematic development from the point of view of regional evolution in Asia Africa and Latin America and through a detailed examination of the work of some of the Third World's most striking film innovators In addition to charting the broad outlines of filmic developments too little known in Europe and the United States the book calls into question many of the assumptions that shape conventional film history It stresses the role of distribution in defining and limiting production queries simplistic notions of independent national cinemas and points to the need to take social and economic factors into account when considering authorship in cinema Above all the book celebrates the achievements of a mass of largely unknown film makers who in difficult circumstances have distinctively expanded our definitions of the art of cinema Roy Armes who lives in London has written nine books on film his most recent being French Cinema He spent more than three years researching this volume      Third World Film Making and the West Roy Armes, 2018 This is the fully comprehensive account of film production in the Third World Although they are usually ignored or marginalized in histories of world cinema Third World countries now produce well over half of the world's films Armes places this huge output in a wider context examining the forces of tradition and colonialism that have shaped the Third World In addition to charting filmic developments too little known in Europe and the United States the book calls into question many of the assumptions that shape conventional film history It stresses the role of distribution in defining and limiting production queries simplistic notions of independent national cinemas and points to the need to take social and economic factors into account when considering authorship in cinema Above all the book celebrates the achievements of a mass of largely unknown film makers who in difficult circumstances have distinctively expanded our definitions of the art of cinema      New Latin American Cinema Michael T. since 2000 an extraordinary period of international recognition for the region's cinema. Each chapter assesses an individual film with some contributors considering the reasons for the unprecedented commercial and critical successes of movies such as City of God, The Motorcycle Diaries, Y tu mamá también and Nine Queens while others examine why equally important films failed to break out on the international circuit. Written by leading specialists, the chapters not only offer textual analysis but also trace the films' social context and production conditions as well as critical national and transnational issues. Their well-rounded analyses provide a rich picture of the state of contemporary filmmaking in a range of Latin American countries. Nuanced and thought-provoking, the readings in this book will provide invaluable interpretations for students and scholars of Latin American film.

Youssef Chahine Ibrahim Fawal, 2019-07-25

A discussion of the frequently controversial film maker Youssef Chahine. The book aims to illuminate Chahine's work in the context of modern Egyptian culture and its tumultuous post-war history and how such films as Cairo Station (1958), The Earth (1959) and The Sparrow (1973) dramatized the dilemmas of ordinary Egyptians. He also argues that Chahine's intensely autobiographical trilogy Alexandria Why? (1978), An Egyptian Story (1985) and Alexandria More and More (1989) spoke to the concerns of the broader Egyptian intelligentsia, amongst whom he has earned the reputation of being the poet and thinker of modern Arab cinema. The final analysis of the book argues that Chahine's work stands comparison with directors such as Fellini, Bergman, Kurosawa or Sembene, but also emphatically draws strength from its links with one of the most vibrant popular cinemas of the world and from the roots and traditions of popular Arabic culture.

The Arab National Project in Youssef Chahine's Cinema Malek Khouri, 2010

In a major addition to the academic library on the cinema of Youssef Chahine and on Arab and Egyptian cinema in general, Malek Khouri here presents the most comprehensive and up-to-date study on Chahine's work to appear since his death in 2008. The methodological approach of the book and more precisely the discussion of the theme of Arab national unity from a post-colonial point of view emphasizes the ideological underpinnings of this Egyptian director's themes as well as his esthetics. The author focuses on the interaction between Chahine's personal and political preoccupations, his eclectic cinematic style and his devotion to connecting with a wide audience of filmgoers. The Arab National Project in Youssef Chahine's Cinema is an important contribution to original scholarship in the fields of cultural studies, sociology of film and history of cinema and will be of great interest to scholars, students and cinema lovers all over the world.

The New Wave Cinema in Iran Parviz Jahed, 2022-06-02

The New Wave Cinema in Iran is a historical and analytical study of the Iranian New Wave Cinema. Mowjib Noori as an artistic and intellectual movement that came to its best early productions between 1958 and 1978. As the movement has a long history, Parviz Jahed focuses on the development and the early progression of the movement in the 1960s and explores its emergence and development in the context of the cultural and social conditions of Iran during this period. Jahed first defines the term New Wave in Iran's film culture in order to identify the root elements that gave traction to this movement He analyses the degree to which different elements and factors have contributed to the formation of this cinema accounting for the different approaches of Iranian intellectual filmmakers towards modernity and a modern form of cinema in Iran The book finishes by studying the works of three intellectual figures and influential filmmakers of the 1960s Ebrahim Golestan Farrokh Ghaffari and Feraydoon Rahnema who are arguably considered the forerunners of the New Wave Cinema in Iran
