On July 11, the United Nations will mark its annual World Population Day, which aims to raise awareness of global population trends and related issues.

Here are five facts about how the world's population is projected to change in the coming decades, based on a Pew Research Center analysis of the UN's World Population Prospects. The latest data is from 2023, so the numbers for 2004 and beyond are projections.

How we did this

1 Global population growth is expected to slow between now and 2100. The population more than tripled in the last 75 years, but the UN expects it to grow by only about 4.9 billion between now and 2100 (from 8.2 billion to 13.2 billion).

The population is expected to peak at 10.3 billion in 2084 and then decline to 10.2 billion through the end of the century.
