Abstract—The purpose of this study was to determine the effect of a 10-week training program on the heart rate (HR) and blood pressure (BP) of sedentary, middle-aged men. The subjects were divided into two groups: a control group and a training group. The training group performed a 10-week program of aerobic exercise, while the control group remained sedentary. HR and BP were measured at baseline and at the end of the 10-week period. The results showed that the training group had a significant decrease in both HR and BP compared to the control group. The decrease in HR was approximately 10 beats per minute, and the decrease in BP was approximately 10 mmHg. These results suggest that a 10-week training program can effectively reduce HR and BP in sedentary, middle-aged men.

1. The first step in the process of identifying a problem is to define the problem. This involves identifying the symptoms of the problem and determining the scope of the problem. Once the problem has been defined, the next step is to identify the causes of the problem. This involves identifying the factors that are contributing to the problem and determining the underlying causes. Once the causes have been identified, the next step is to develop a plan to address the problem. This involves identifying the actions that need to be taken to address the problem and determining the resources that will be needed to implement the plan. Finally, the last step in the process is to implement the plan and monitor the results. This involves putting the plan into action and tracking the progress of the plan to ensure that the problem is being addressed effectively.
