returns home to find Scudder dead with a knife through his heart. Exhausted I returned from the City about three o'clock on that May afternoon pretty well disgusted with life I had been three months in the Old Country and was fed up with it. If anyone had told me a year ago that I would have been feeling like that I should have laughed at him but there was the fact. The weather made me liverish the talk of the ordinary Englishman made me sick I couldn't get enough exercise and the amusements of London seemed as flat as soda-water that has been standing in the sun. Richard Hannay I kept telling myself you have got into the wrong ditch my friend and you had better climb out. It made me bite my lips to think of the plans I had been building up those last years in Bulawayo I had got my pile not one of the big ones but good enough for me and I had figured out all kinds of ways of enjoying myself. My father had brought me out from Scotland at the age of six and I had never been home since so England was a sort of Arabian Nights to me and I counted on stopping there for the rest of my days.

The Thirty-Nine Steps Annotated & Illustrated Edition by John Buchan John Buchan, 2021-03-19. There is talk of war in Europe; it is May 1914 and Richard Hannay, a Scot, is starting afresh in London after time spent in Rhodesia, now Zimbabwe. He is gregarious and talks to strangers in passing but one seems to attach himself more than the average casual acquaintance: Franklin P. Scudder is an American who is convinced that the world is about to erupt into war He tells Hannay that he is actually dead which of course intrigues Hannay because it is not often one finds oneself talking to a dead man Scudder elaborates and tells Hannay that he is a freelance spy and has faked his own death in order to be able to conduct his investigations more safely He tells of a group of Germans chasing him and Hannay offers to allow him to stay at his flat for a little while Unfortunately this does not seem to throw the Germans off the scent one evening a man who lives in Hannay's building is murdered and a couple of days after that Hannay returns home to his flat to find that Hannay too has been murdered stabbed in the heart
