The Routledge Companion to Landscape Studies Peter Howard, Ian Thompson, Emma Waterton, Mick Atha, 2013-02-15 Landscape is a vital synergistic concept which opens up ways of thinking about many of the problems which beset our contemporary world such as climate change social alienation environmental degradation loss of biodiversity and destruction of heritage As a concept landscape does not respect disciplinary boundaries Indeed many academic disciplines have found the concept so important it has been used as a qualifier that delineates whole sub disciplines landscape ecology landscape planning landscape archaeology and so forth In other cases landscape studies progress under a broader banner such as heritage studies or cultural geography Yet it does not always mean the same thing in all of these contexts The Routledge Companion to Landscape Studies offers the first comprehensive attempt to explore research directions into the many uses and meanings of landscape The Companion contains thirty nine original contributions from leading scholars within the field which have been divided into four parts Experiencing Landscape Landscape Culture and Heritage Landscape Society and Justice and Design and Planning for Landscape Topics covered range from phenomenological approaches to landscape to the consideration of landscape as a repository of human culture from ideas of identity and belonging to issues of power and hegemony and from discussions of participatory planning and design to the call for new imaginaries in a time of global and environmental crisis Each contribution explores the future development of different conceptual and theoretical approaches as well as recent empirical contributions to knowledge and understanding Collectively they encourage dialogue across disciplinary barriers and reflection upon the implications of research findings for local national and international policy in relation to landscape This Companion provides up to date critical reviews of state of the art perspectives across this multifaceted field embracing disciplines such as anthropology archaeology cultural studies geography landscape planning landscape architecture countryside management forestry heritage studies ecology and fine art It serves as an invaluable point of reference for scholars researchers and graduate students alike engaging in the field of landscape studies

Managing Arts Programs in Healthcare Patricia Dewey Lambert, 2015-10-05 A growing body of research demonstrates how the arts including literary performing and visual arts as well as architecture and design can greatly enhance the experience of healthcare contributing to improved health outcomes a better patient experience and lower healthcare costs This unique book provides an overview of what the arts in healthcare can achieve and how to implement the arts in the most effective manner Exploring possibilities for innovative program design and implementation from healing gardens through public performances to bedside activities the text draws on examples from a wide range of arts The book then goes on to look at how programs can be aimed at specific populations and fields such as children palliative care and caregivers This comprehensive book is an invaluable reference for all those studying or engaged in creating designing managing and evaluating arts in healthcare programs and initiatives

Technobiophilia Sue Thomas, 2013-09-26 Why are there so many nature metaphors clouds rivers streams viruses and bugs in the language of the internet Why do we adorn our screens with exotic images of forests waterfalls animals and beaches In Technobiophilia Nature and Cyberspace Sue Thomas interrogates the prevalence online of nature derived metaphors and imagery and comes to a surprising conclusion The root of this trend she believes lies in biophilia defined by biologist E O Wilson as the innate attraction to life and lifelike processes In this wide ranging transdisciplinary study she explores the strong thread of biophilia which runs through our online lives a phenomenon she calls technobiophilia or the innate attraction to life and lifelike processes as they appear in technology The restorative qualities of biophilia can alleviate mental fatigue and enhance our capacity for directed attention soothing our connected minds and easing our relationship with computers Technobiophilia Nature and Cyberspace offers new insights on what is commonly known as work life balance It explores ways to make our peace with technology induced anxiety and achieve a tech nature balance through practical experiments designed to enhance our digital lives indoors outdoors and online The book draws on a long history of literature on nature and technology and breaks new ground as the first to link the two Its accessible style will attract the general reader whilst the clear definition of key terms and concepts throughout should appeal to undergraduates and postgraduates of new media and communication studies internet studies environmental psychology and human computer interaction www.technobiophilia.com

Children, Nature, Cities Ann Marie F. Murnaghan, Laura J. Shillington, 2016-05-26 Why does the way we think about urban children and urban nature matter This volume explores how dichotomies between nature culture rural urban and child adult have structured our understandings about the place of children and nature in the city By placing children and youth at the center of re theorising the city as a socio natural space the book illustrates how children and youth s relations to and with nature can change adultist perspectives and help create more ecologically and socially just cities As a key contribution to children s studies the book engages and enlivens debates in urban political ecology and urban theory which have not yet treated age as an important axis of difference With examples from ten localities the chapters in this volume ask how we can subvert both romanticized and modernist conceptualizations of nature and childhood that conflate innocence and purity with children and nature the volume asks what happens when we re invent urban natures with children s needs and perspectives in mind

Urban Place Peggy F. Barlett, 2005-08-26 Amidst city concrete and suburban sprawl Americans are discovering new ways to reconnect with the natural world From community gardens in New York s Lower East Side to homeless shelters in California the search for a more sustainable future has led grassroots groups to a profound reconnection to place and to the natural world Studies of the health consequences of renewing a connection with nature support the urgency of providing green surroundings as cities expand and the majority of the earth s population lives in urban areas Medical research results from groups as diverse as healthy volunteers surgery patients and heart attack survivors suggest that contact with nature may improve health and well being Engagement with nearby natural places also provides restoration from mental fatigue and support for more resilient and cooperative behavior Aspects of stronger community life are fostered by access to nature suggesting that there are significant social as well as physical and psychological benefits from connection with the natural world This volume brings together research from anthropology sociology public health psychology and landscape architecture to highlight how awareness of locale and a meaningful renewal of attachment with the earth are connected to delight in learning about nature as well as to civic action and new forms of community Community garden coalitions organic market advocates and greenspace preservationists resist the power of global forces enacting visions of a different future Their creative efforts tell a story of a constructive and dynamic middle ground between private plots and public action between human health and ecosystem health between individual attachment and urban sustainability Forest Landscape Restoration John Stanturf, David Lamb, Palle Madsen, 2012-11-28 Restoration ecology as a scientific discipline developed from practitioners efforts to restore degraded land with interest also coming from applied ecologists attracted by the potential for restoration projects to apply and or test developing theories on ecosystem development Since then forest landscape restoration FLR has emerged as a practical approach to forest restoration particularly in developing countries where an approach which is both large scale and focuses on meeting human needs is required Yet despite increased investigation into both the biological and social aspects of FLR there has so far been little success in systematically integrating these two complementary strands Bringing experts in landscape studies natural resource management and forest restoration together with those experienced in conflict management environmental economics and urban studies this book bridges that gap to define the nature and potential of FLR as a truly multidisciplinary approach to a global environmental problem The book will provide a valuable reference to graduate students and researchers interested in ecological restoration forest ecology and management as well as to professionals in environmental restoration natural resource management conservation and environmental policy
