Education for Tomorrow A Biocentric Student Focused Approach to Education Reform Michael Risku University of the Incarnate Word USA and Letitia Harding University of the Incarnate Word USA There are many books on the market which discuss indigenous ways of knowing and bemoan western society's seeming lack of interest in anything other than scientific fact based knowledge Equally plentiful are the writings of critical theorists who consider today's public education system to be divisive and manipulated by those in power to ensure that their children have the educational advantages needed to maintain the elite hierarchical status quo Education for Tomorrow is unique in that it brings both of these approaches together first by examining the ways that indigenous people and women of all cultures acquire and pass on knowledge and the deleterious effects that enforced Eurocentric systems have had on that process The authors then turn to public schools to explore the influences both good and bad that today's programs have on the distribution of opportunities afforded to all children in the United States Finally they offer suggestions for a revolutionary education system which highlights the need for all students to have the encouragement and freedom to look critically and rationally at their lives and at their relationship with the natural world This can be achieved by looking back to the pedagogical methods of our indigenous ancestors and forward to a time when all children regardless of ethnic or socio economic heritage are taught in such a way that every aspect of their lives is addressed nurtured valued and enhanced Rise, Tomorrow Girl Cara Martin, 2024-06-21

In the near future seventeen year old Canadian Leanne Khoury watches a second twenty first century global pandemic this one highly fatal in young adults steal the life of her best friend When Leanne is stricken ill too her affluent parents have her cryogenically frozen in a facility performing experimental procedures Reanimated and cured of virus years later Leanne isn't the same Her awareness intermittently disconnects stalling her body and mind But it's more than that Snatches of memories from evolutionary ancestors bleed through her consciousness leaving her feeling as unnatural as Frankenstein's monster on the inside Over a billion people perished during the pandemic decimating a generation and when Leanne's released from the cryo facility she struggles to integrate into a Canada and world that has technologically and socially moved on without her Although the virus is no longer a threat Leanne is far from safe In the United States organized extremists threaten legitimate government regularly committing attacks on U S soil Then radical American expansionist soldiers invade parts of Canada and Leanne along with others not accepted by the radical invaders must fight for her survival
