Hondius, 2004 Since its original publication ten years ago Towards a European Civil Code has become an international classic It is both a preeminent reference in the debate on the future of European private law and a standard text in legal education in many European universities This third fully revised and expanded edition includes new contributions on such important matters as the following constitutionalisation social concerns economic analysis arguments against a European civil code e commerce and sales service and insurance contracts All forty four chapters have been brought fully up to date with European and national developments making Towards a European Civil Code the cornerstone in any endeavour involving issues in European private law

The Politics of a European Civil Code Martijn W. Hesselink, 2011 In 2003 the European Commission published its Action Plan on European contract law That plan formed an important step towards a European Civil Code In its Plan the Commission tried to depoliticise the codification process by asking a group of academic experts to prepare what it called a common frame of reference This paper published in the European Law Journal in 2004 argued that drafting a European Civil Code involves making many choices which are essentially political It further argued that the technocratic approach which the Commission had adopted in the Action Plan effectively excluded most stakeholders from having their say during the stage when the real choices were made Therefore before the drafting of the CFR ECC starts the Commission should have submitted a list of policy questions regarding the main issues of European private law to the European Parliament and the other stakeholders Such an alternative procedure would have repoliticised the process It would have increased the democratic basis for a European Civil Code and thus its legitimacy Legitimacy Conditions for a European Civil Code Christoph Schmid (Dr. iur.),2001 Comparative Contract Law, Fourth Edition Thomas Kadner Graziano,2025-05-14 Comparative Contract Law is the fourth edition of a widely acclaimed and well established textbook which uses extensive case studies and integrates extracts from legislation and court practice enabling students to experience comparative law in action It continues to promote a learning by doing approach offering a unique and seminal guide to European and international contract law

Performance-Oriented Remedies in European Sale of Goods Law Vanessa Mak, 2009-01-15 Contractual remedies aimed at performance create a well known rift between common law and civil law traditions in the one existing in the shadow of damages whilst in the other regarded as a generally enforceable right following from the contract Developments in approximation of laws in Europe in particular in consumer sales law suggest however that a convergence of these approaches may be within reach Putting the focus on the contract of sale which as the most common type of contract may fulfil a leading role in the harmonisation process this book aims to provide a model for further convergence of European sales laws engaging with issues of contract theory and comparative law lying at the heart of the process Independently from this the comparison between different systems is used in order to highlight particular problems in the remedial schemes of individual systems and to see whether a better solution may be borrowed from elsewhere Scaling the interests of sellers and buyers as reflected in national laws as well as in uniform sets of rules such as CISG and PECL a plea is made for a primary position for performance oriented remedies in the harmonisation of European sales law In this context special significance is attributed to the possibility of cure by the seller which has both practical and conceptual links to the buyer s remedies aimed at performance Towards a European Civil Code Gavin Barrett, 2002

Comparative Contract Law Thomas Kadner Graziano, 2023-01-17 This significantly revised and expanded third edition of Comparative Contract Law brings together extracts from legislation and court practice in a way that enables students to experience comparative law in action

Why Europe Needs a Civil Code Hugh Collins, 2013 Does the European Union need a Civil Code Like a dark cloud this question hovers over debates about the future of private law in Europe Few advocate explicitly the adoption of a civil code in the immediate future yet many have taken instrumental steps along a road that seems to lead only in that direction Those steps whether they be in the task of discovering common core of principles of private law among national legal systems 1 or producing a systematic body of principles such as the Principles of European Contract Law² and the Draft Common Frame of Reference of rules and principles for the law of obligations³ or augmenting the scope of Directives to include more and more types of transactions all have the same direction of travel towards a comprehensive European set of rules governing contracts and related legal obligations Although these efforts are fascinating intellectual ventures and may prove useful for some purposes it is important to ask whether the European Union really needs to go on this journey towards a Civil Code

The Law and Economics of Federalism Jonathan Klick, 2017-01-27 This unique volume takes a primarily empirical perspective on the law and economics of federalism Using cross jurisdiction variation the specially commissioned chapters examine the effects of various state experiments in areas such as crime welfare consumer protection and a host of other areas Although legal scholars have talked about states as laboratories for decades rarely has the law and economics literature treated the topic of federalism empirically in such a systematic and useful way

The Draft Common Frame of Reference as a "Toolbox" for Domestic Courts Marta Santos Silva, 2017-07-03 This book investigates whether national courts could and should import innovative solutions from abroad in the adjudication of complex legal disputes Special attention is paid to the concept of legally relevant damage and its importance in overcoming the deadlock created by the category of pure economic loss in the Portuguese and German tort law systems. These systems are essentially based on the concept of unlawfulness (Rechtswidrigkeit) which limits the compensation for pure economic loss to where a protective rule is infringed. These losses have nevertheless been compensated for through the extensive interpretation of rules and the appeal to near contractual devices which has been detrimental to legal certainty, the equality before the law and subjects' freedom of action. This book explains why courts can and should take a proactive role and apply DCFR based solutions in order to compensate for every loss that is worthy of legal protection.

An International Restatement of Contract Law Michael Joachim Bonell, 1994. No one but Professor Bonell was better qualified to write this sort of Discours préliminaire to the UNIDROIT Principles. There is no doubt that his International Restatement of Contract Law will induce all interested circles: practitioners, judges, legislators, the Principles of European Contract Law, the first practical experiences with the UNIDROIT Principles, a survey of the first major decisions rendered by arbitral tribunals, State courts, thus far.

Third Party Rights: A Comparison of English and German Law with Respect to the UNIDROIT Principles on International Commercial Contracts Karsten Keilhack, 2004-03-15. Seminar paper from the year 2003 in the subject Law Comparative Legal Systems Comparative Law grade 75% With Distinction Cardiff University, Großbritannien Law School course Comparative Contract Law language English abstract. The question as to whether a third party can be granted rights or protection based on a contract between two other parties to which the third party is a mere stranger is as old as the legal scholarship of contract law itself. Over centuries quite different approaches to the issue have been evolved and embedded in different legal systems each with its own characteristics and features. This essay intends primarily to analyse and compare the approaches of English¹ and German Law to third party rights arising from bilateral contracts, particularly with regard to contracts for the benefit of a third party and the new Contracts (Rights of Third Parties) Act 1999. However, despite this main focus, some other features related to third party involvement in mutual contracts will be considered too. In the first and the second part of this essay I will describe the modus operandi of English and German law with regard to third party rights and highlight differences and similarities. The third part of this paper concerns the approach of that what is sometimes called an international restatement of contract law, namely the UNIDROIT Principles of International Commercial Contracts² to the rights of third parties. A comparison of the English and German system with the restatement will illustrate to what extent elements of these two national legal systems have been implemented and considered in an international project of unification of law.
