Mutua, 2022-06-01 As the demand for education at all levels has increased so have the models of meeting these increased demands for education As in many other parts of the world public education has expanded to serve large populations across the regions of Africa the Caribbean and the Middle East Many nations in these regions have instituted mandates policies and frameworks intended to simultaneously increase access to public education opportunities as well as improve the quality of education provided and to address a wide populace Because the increase in educational demand has occurred at all levels these efforts often address various levels of education from early childhood through primary schooling junior secondary and secondary schooling and into tertiary education Efforts also have been made to increase participation in education by marginalized and or special populations The range of efforts is large with some focusing on involving migrants immigrants refugees in primary education while others aim at opening up choices at the university level Recently nations in the region have recognized the possibilities of digital learning online learning as cell phones and other widely used portable wireless devices have made it possible to sell the idea that one can learn from anywhere at any time This widespread access to technology has made it possible for governments as well as private entities to expand learning opportunities even to populations previously unreached or to address difficult to reach sectors of the population At the same time the population itself has not only increased in numbers but in diversity Maintaining quality through digital and other means of quick expansion of educational opportunities continues to be challenging if not problematic Effects of Government Mandates and

School Leadership in the Caribbean Paul Miller, 2013-05-06 Successful school leadership is an issue currently being debated up and down Caribbean territories Key issues in the ongoing debate include students outcomes and participation in the regional Caribbean Secondary Examinations CSEC teacher recruitment and retention teacher training and continuing professional development upgrading and parental involvement These issues point to leadership at various levels whether in its exercise or in its influence and are examined within and across national and regional education systems Particular attention is given to debates around improving outcomes for students teacher development and the role of the principal in leading school improvement A source of debate about practice of school leadership in the Caribbean surrounds the issue of gender Where are men in teaching Where are men in leadership positions and positions of responsibility Unlike in some countries where for example men tend to hold more leadership positions than women especially at the secondary phase of education in the Caribbean this is not the case there are more female teachers at every level and more female teachers occupy leadership positions at every level Within this book gendered leadership as practised and enacted in the Caribbean is examined from religious social historical and political positions pointing to a clear political dichotomy There is no unitary definition of what can count as school leadership in the Caribbean despite clear similarities of practices and approaches What this volume argues however is that within the Caribbean region there are many similarities of experience for the practice and exercise of school leadership which draw on a common framework of teacher training a common language and a common socio political history that existed well before the formation of CARICOM through British colonisation This book does not dwell on the period of British colonisation but discusses the extent to which this period in Caribbean history has influenced the practice of school leadership today most notably in areas such as curricular and teacher training models Education in emergency situations such teaching and learning in severe weather conditions such as hurricanes is also spotlighted As a whole the themes in this edited volume proffer an evidence based approach to contemporary issues in school leadership in the Caribbean and extend the current literature in the field
