Racial Worldmaking Mark C. Jerng, 2017-11-07 When does racial description become racism Critical race studies has not come up with good answers to this question because it has overemphasized the visibility of race According to dominant theories of racial formation we see race on bodies and persons and then link those perceptions to unjust practices of racial inequality Racial Worldmaking argues that we do not just see race We are taught when where and how to notice race by a set of narrative and interpretive strategies These strategies are named racial worldmaking because they get us to notice race not just at the level of the biological representation of bodies or the social categorization of persons Rather they get us to embed race into our expectations for how the world operates As Mark C Jerng shows us these strategies find their most powerful expression in popular genre fiction science fiction romance and fantasy Taking up the work of H G Wells Margaret Mitchell Samuel Delany Philip K Dick and others Racial Worldmaking rethinks racial formation in relation to both African American and Asian American studies as well as how scholars have addressed the relationships between literary representation and racial ideology In doing so it engages questions central to our current moment In what ways do we participate in racist worlds and how can we imagine and build one that is anti racist
