Woodruff A Study Of Community Decision Making:

Woodruff, a Study of Community Decision Making Albert Schaffer, Ruth Connor Schaffer, 1970 This study analyzes the factors that operated during the thirties on through the mid sixties to prevent the city and the urban township surrounding it from developing organized cooperative responses to industrial and population growth It concentrates on both the decisions and the failure to make decisions that had the greatest impact on maintaining the framework of city and township government Originally published 1970 A UNC Press Enduring Edition UNC Press Enduring Editions use the latest in digital technology to make available again books from our distinguished backlist that were previously out of print These editions are published unaltered from the original and are presented in affordable paperback formats bringing readers both historical and cultural value

Woodruff, a Study of Community Decision Making, by Albert Schaffer and Ruth Connor Schaffer Albert Schaffer, The Study of Community Power Willis D. Hawley, James H. Svara, 1972 Community Power and Decision-making Irving P. Leif, 1974 Alternate call JC330 L43 1974 Housing and Planning References, 1971 Who Really Rules? G. William Domhoff, 1978 Robert A Dahl's Who Governs is a classic pluralist study which has had an important influence on American social science since the early sixties Who Really Rules provides a categorical challenge empirical methodological and theoretical to Dahl's work Empirically Domhoff's restudy of New Haven shows through newly discovered documents that Dahl was wrong about the pluralism of New Haven's power structure He also presents the most systematic statement of power structure methodology yet made a statement that contradicts Dahl's methodological claims which have been the prevailing wisdom in American social science for over fifteen years Finally Domhoff outlines the national policy planning network through which the big business ruling class dominates urban government Who Really Rules is unique in that it makes possible for the first time a dialogue between pluralist and ruling class views on the basis of studies of the same city by leading exponents of the rival theoretical positions It is original in that it includes much data not revealed by Dahl It presents the methodology of power structure research in the most comprehensive fashion yet attempted and reveals a ruling class network for urban policy planning that has never before been fully articulated Research Paper, 1974

Community Power Succession Floyd Hunter, 2018-11-15 Hunter returns to Atlanta and reveals how the power structure of the 1950s has changed during the 1960s and 1970s By combining scholarly analysis personal reminiscences observation and social prescription he provides a companion work that is as important as its predecessor He compares the earlier circles of top leadership with the new men of power and examines substantive social change in power structure relations including the roles played by blacks and by white real estate developers Originally published 1980 A UNC Press Enduring Edition UNC Press Enduring Editions use the latest in digital technology to make available again books from our distinguished backlist that were previously out of print These editions are published unaltered from the original and are presented in affordable paperback formats bringing readers both historical and cultural value Catalog of Copyright
