Year 7 Ancient China Units Of Work:

Writing and Literacy in Early China Feng Li, David Prager Branner, 2011-11-22 The emergence and spread of literacy in ancient human society an important topic for all who study the ancient world and the development of written Chinese is of particular interest as modern Chinese orthography preserves logographic principles shared by its most ancient forms making it unique among all present day writing systems In the past three decades the discovery of previously unknown texts dating to the third century BCE and earlier as well as older versions of known texts has revolutionized the study of early Chinese writing The long term continuity and stability of the Chinese written language allow for this detailed study of the role literacy played in early civilization The contributors to Writing and Literacy in Early China inquire into modes of manuscript production the purposes for which texts were produced and the ways in which they were actually used By carefully evaluating current evidence and offering groundbreaking new interpretations the book illuminates the nature of literacy for scribes and readers

Imperial Institutions in Ancient Rome and Early China Michael Loewe, Michael Nylan, T. Corey Brennan, 2025-05-15 Written by the eminent sinologist Michael Loewe and edited for publication by T Corey Brennan and Michael Nylan this book gives an overview of the considerations and practices of two major world empires that together ruled half of the earth's population in the first centuries BCE ancient Rome and Han China Approaching the historical material with a comparative perspective Loewe examines the strengths and weaknesses and the successes and failures which can be seen in the organisation and government of these two political systems Though each empire was largely ignorant of the other the problems they faced were similar given the rudimentary transportation and communication facilities of the time the high mortality rates and the low levels of literacy Yet each empire ruled its people in distinctly different ways with the Roman empire governed largely by military officials in contrast to the Chinese empire whose administration was well stocked with roughly 130 000 highly trained professionals The ten chapters of this book set out to compare the ways that these two contemporary regimes similar in size and population sought to control human activities and impose a set of regulated discipline over those who were ruled Each chapter concerns the degrees and methods of forming a united people the assumptions that lay behind such attempts the reliance that imperial authority placed on religious practices legal impositions and the structure of institutions and the bases of social cohesion and economic co operation The result is an engaging study of two remarkable empires whose rise and fall are contrasted in a way that deepens our understanding of empire and civilisation

Eastern Han texts a strict correlation between the author and the text results from later conceptions of literary history Before the modern era there existed a conceptual gap between an author and a writer A pre modern Chinese text could have had both an author and a writer or even multiple authors and multiple writers This work is the first study addressing these issues by more systematically emphasizing the connection of the text the author and the religious and sociopolitical settings in which these issues were embedded It is expected to constitute a palpable contribution to Chinese studies and the discipline of philology in general Ancient China, 2003 Ancient China and its Enemies Nicola Di Cosmo, 2002-02-25 Relations between Inner Asian nomads and Chinese are a continuous theme throughout Chinese history By investigating the formation of nomadic cultures by analyzing the evolution of patterns of interaction along China's frontiers and by exploring how this interaction was recorded in historiography this looks at the origins of the cultural and political tensions between these two civilizations through the first millennium BC The main purpose of the book is to analyze ethnic cultural and political frontiers between nomads and Chinese in the historical contexts that led to their formation and to look at cultural perceptions of others as a function of the same historical process Based on both archaeological and textual sources this 2002 book also introduces a new methodological approach to Chinese frontier history which combines extensive factual data with a careful scrutiny of the motives methods and general conception of history that informed the Chinese historian Ssu ma Chien Documentation and Argument in Early China Dirk Meyer, 2021-07-05 This study uncovers the traditions behind the formative Classic Sh ngsh Venerated Documents It is the first to establish these traditions Sh Documents as a historically evolving practice of thought production By focusing on the literary form of the argument it interprets the Sh as fluid text material that embodies the ever changing cultural capital of projected conceptual communities By showing how these communities actualised the Sh according to their changing visions of history and evolving group interests the study establishes that by the Warring States period ca 453-221 BC the Sh had become a literary genre employed by diverse groups to legitimize their own arguments Through forms of textual performance the Sh gave even peripheral communities the means to participate in political discourse by conferring their ideas with ancient authority Analysing this dynamic environment of socio political and philosophical change this study speaks to the Early China field as well as to those interested in meaning production and foundational text formation more widely
