The Episcopate and the Parting of the Ways Martin Landgren, 2025-11-21 In this dissertation the use of the term and its cognates in Christ group literature between 60 and 180 CE is analysed Categories from Social Identity theory relating to leadership such as prototypicality identity entrepreneurship identity impresarioship and identity advancement indicate that the emerging episcopal office in the Christ groups played a significant role in the development of a distinct Christian identity Important Christ group texts from the New Testament Philippians Acts 1 Peter and the Pastoral Epistles and non canonical writings Didache The Shepherd of Hermas 1 Clement the Ignatian letters and Irenaeus s Against Heresies book three are examined All these texts highlight the need for prototypical leadership meaning leadership that exemplifies in group norms The embodies a developing specific Christian identity The texts also develop the in group prototype as an act of entrepreneurship in ways that exclude certain traits such as halakah adherence except for the Didache Additionally the is viewed as a continuation of the mission of Jesus and the apostles from Acts to Irenaeus and as a representation of the heavenly realm Ignatius so that Christian identity is embedded within the episcopal structure an example of impresarioship This suggests that the emerging episcopal office widened the gap between Christ groups and synagogues with only the rare exception of the episcopal role in the composite text of Didache

Ralph Ellison and Kenneth Burke at the Roots of the Racial Divide Bryan Crable, 2012 Ralph Ellison and Kenneth Burke focuses on the little known but important friendship between two canonical American writers The story of this fifty year friendship however is more than literary biography Bryan Crable argues that the

Burke Ellison relationship can be interpreted as a microcosm of the American racial divide Through examination of published writings and unpublished correspondence he reconstructs the dialogue between Burke and Ellison about race that shaped some of their most important works including Burke s A Rhetoric of Motives and Ellison s Invisible Man In addition the book connects this dialogue to changes in American discourse about race Crable shows that these two men were deeply connected intellectually and personally but the social division between white and black Americans produced hesitation embarrassment mystery and estrangement where Ellison and Burke might otherwise have found unity By using Ellison s nonfiction and Burke s rhetorical theory to articulate a new vocabulary of race the author concludes not with a simplistic healing of the divide but with a challenge to embrace the responsibility inherent to our social order American Literatures Initiative Folk
