Mapping

Feminist International Relations in South Asia Shweta Singh, Amena Mohsin, 2024-12-30

This book provides a comprehensive overview of feminist international relations in South Asia. It highlights the key contentions, debates, and tensions in the field and studies how the trajectory of feminist international relations in the region has been marked by dialogue, dissidence, and difference with the Global North. In doing so, the volume draws attention to different feminist histories, herstories, and differing ways of knowing, seeing, and doing global politics. It particularly foregrounds a feminist intersectional postcolonial lens to a diverse range of issues such as women's peace and the security agenda, populism, and nationalism, militarism, and militarisation, and underlines the rich, textured contours of feminist epistemologies in South Asia.

An important contribution, the book will be of great interest to scholars, teachers, and students of feminism, international relations, postcolonialism, women's studies, gender studies, security studies, and South Asian studies.

Security and South

Asia Swarna Rajagopalan, 2014-03-21

Stephen Philip Cohen can rightly be called the doyen of South Asian security analysis, especially traditional security concerns in the region and advocacy on US foreign policy. The contributors to the volume have all at different points in time been Cohen's students and are now well-known scholars in their own right. Broadly dividing Cohen's work into categories, the contributors deal with the following issues: how security is understood and how important strategic relationships are framed; approaches to and choices made in the areas of military structure, arms production, and investment in science and technology; how and why civil society groups are mobilized towards political ends; specifically looking at ethnic mobilization in diaspora communities; non-official initiatives for peace in South Asia; and the role of state and non-state actors in disaster management; the role of the army. The essays reflect a view of security as something people choose to make for themselves through an exercise of agency that is rooted in the realm of ideas.

Transdisciplinary

Ethnography in India Rosa Maria Perez, Lina M. Fruzzetti, 2021-08-18

This book familiarises readers with a new way to treat the subject of gender, foregrounding the real voices of women, their experiences, doing ethnographic work, and their courage in sharing their stories publicly for the first time in the context of India. A useful companion to more theory-based anthropological studies, the book connects ethnographic data to what eventually becomes theories formed from the field. Chapters by women from a variety of disciplines: Anthropology, Literary and Translation studies, Political Sciences transcend the academic boundaries between social sciences and humanities.

The book shows how the researchers navigate in the field, write in ways that defy their academic life and work, and call into question their narrative voice. The book presents a space for women to reflect on their individual themes of research and, at partially filling the vacuum mentioned above, the silences of women's voices and expressions. The experiences described in the chapters differ both along the divide of a native and a non native fieldworker and along different disciplinary fields but they share the experience of a long term fieldwork in India and the need to self reflect on the impact of this experience on the way the field is represented on the people encountered in the field on the way the field impacted on the fieldworker The book is a useful presentation of how female researchers act in the field as women and scholars Filling a gap in the existing literature of ethnographic research methods the book will be of interest to students and researchers interested in the fields of Gender Studies Social Work Sociology Anthropology and Asian Studies

Violence against Women and Girls Jennifer L. Solotaroff, Rohini Prabha Pande, 2014-09-04 This report documents the dynamics of violence against women in South Asia across the life cycle from early childhood to old age It explores the different types of violence that women may face throughout their lives as well as the associated perpetrators male and female risk and protective factors for both victims and perpetrators and interventions to address violence across all life cycle stages The report also analyzes the societal factors that drive the primarily male but also female perpetrators to commit violence against women in the region For each stage and type of violence the report critically reviews existing research from Afghanistan Bangladesh Bhutan India Maldives Nepal Pakistan and Sri Lanka supplemented by original analysis and select literature from outside the region Policies and programs that address violence against women and girls are analyzed in order to highlight key actors and promising interventions Finally the report identifies critical gaps in research program evaluations and interventions in order to provide strategic recommendations for policy makers civil society and other stakeholders working to mitigate violence against women in South Asia
