

The background of the book cover is a detailed reproduction of an ancient Egyptian wall painting. It features several registers of figures and symbols. The top register shows a row of stylized human figures, possibly deities or royalty, standing side-by-side. Below this, there are more figures, some appearing to be in a chariot or on a platform. The bottom register shows a large, dark, stylized figure, possibly a deity or a personified force, standing on a platform. The overall style is characteristic of ancient Egyptian art, with bold outlines and a limited color palette of earth tones.

Anxiety Allan V. Horwitz, 2013-11-01 Fears phobias neuroses and anxiety disorders from ancient times to the present More people today report feeling anxious than ever before even while living in relatively safe and prosperous modern societies Almost one in five people experiences an anxiety disorder each year and more than a quarter of the population admits to an anxiety condition at some point in their lives Here Allan V Horwitz a sociologist of mental illness and mental health narrates how this condition has been experienced understood and treated through the ages from Hippocrates through Freud to today Anxiety is rooted in an ancient part of the brain and our ability to be anxious is inherited from species far more ancient than humans Anxiety is often adaptive it enables us to respond to threats But when normal fear yields to what psychiatry categorizes as anxiety disorders it becomes maladaptive As Horwitz explores the history and multiple identities of anxiety melancholia nerves neuroses phobias and so on it becomes clear that every age has had its own anxieties and that culture plays a role in shaping how anxiety is expressed
