The Sound That Perceives the World Kosho Uchiyama, 2025-11-25 Musings and autobiographically informed commentary on the human condition through the lens of the Kannon gyo chapter 25 of the Lotus Sutra connecting Zen and Pure Land Buddhism through the practice of venerating and chanting the names of buddhas and bodhisattvas The Kannon gyo is chapter 25 of the Lotus Sutra and its focus is the bodhisattva of compassion Avalokiteshvara known in China as Guanyin and in Japan as Kannon or Kanzeon The text describes the many ways in which calling out the bodhisattva's name Namu Kanzeon Bosatsu can relieve suffering Most schools of Zen Buddhism and especially the Soto school eschew such practices as chanting the names of buddhas and bodhisattvas along with venerating such figures The eminent Soto Zen master Kosho Uchiyama Roshi however while doing hard physical labor early in his career could not practice zazen that is formal sitting meditation He came to appreciate the Kannon gyo and the practices related to it In particular he took to reciting Kannon's name as recommended in the text of the Kannon gyo Later in life Uchiyama Roshi suffered from illness that again prevented him from practicing formal Zen so he returned to the Kannon gyo and the practice of chanting He went so far as to assert that chanting Kannon's name is completely equivalent to zazen that the two practices are simply two sides of the same coin a revolutionary idea seemingly at odds with Zen Chanting practice is especially accessible as it can be done while working traveling or suffering from illness and other activities that would ordinarily get in the way of formal Zen practice With these practices the Kannon gyo and Kannon herself as a backdrop Uchiyama Roshi muses about the purposes of religion the goals of religious practice and the meaning of enlightenment and their relation to suffering itself

Rebecca Bradshaw, 2024-11-26 Buddhist teachings and heart-centered practices from the feminine paradigm to embrace receptivity and bring more balance to your life, relationships, and the world. With deeply thoughtful, lyrical prose, this book invites readers to engage with the world from a unique perspective that encourages feeling, intuitive understanding, embodiment, interdependence, and sacredness. Weaving together classical Theravada Buddhist teachings and mindfulness practices, the book teaches us when and how to channel our receptive and active orientations, sometimes called the feminine and masculine paradigms, to feel more at home in ourselves and the world and drop more deeply into the Buddhist teachings on suffering and happiness. Rebecca Bradshaw, a respected Buddhist teacher in the Insight Meditation community, offers teachings that are simple yet require us to explore aspects of ourselves that go against much of our social conditioning that values goal-oriented busyness, productivity, independence, outgoing energy, and other active qualities. When overemphasized, this orientation can cause destructive emotions and behaviors but we can counter them by embracing more receptive qualities The receptive or feminine paradigm takes us deeper into the heart of the classical Buddhist teachings leading to openness and freedom of the heart mind Bradshaw illustrates her own resistance to letting go of her strong active orientation with relatable stories like her efforts to be a perfect meditator Drawing on our connectedness to nature she offers guidance for grounded practices including useless gazing getting lost sense based reality practicing in the wildness accepting uncertainty and more These Buddhist teachings are as comforting as they are thought provoking Bradshaw s debut book helps us let go and nurture our ability to receive listen embrace vulnerability and just be Through this process we heal the imbalances within ourselves and in our relationships to all beings and the natural world Readings of Dōgen's
